Innovations And Improvements For 1955 Listed; Plans For Future To Come Under Discussion

"Something For Everyone", a new slogan adopted this year, apparently was carried out to such a degree that it contributed a large part of the success of this year's Pickaway County Fair.

Henry Reid, secretary of the Fair Board, made this observation recently in reviewing the activities which were introduced for the first time at the 1955 Fair here. He said that innovations and improvements as follows, were instrumental in making this year's Fair one of the best on record:

PARTICIPATION EVENTS

1. Horseshoe pitching—the competition was so successful that a Pickaway County Horseshoe Pitching Club has been formed and has applied for recognition to the state organization. Future plans call for the addition of three more courts and the installation of lights for night matches.

2. Bait casting—a proposal has been submitted to build a pond and have it stocked with fish for next year's competition. The pond could be used as an ice skating rink in the winter time.

3. Trap shooting—Future plans call for the winner of one year not being eligible for the next year. However, a special winners' division will be established.

INNOVATIONS

1. 4-H Saddle Colt Club—drew the highest and most numerous comments. This year's colts will show again next year with a new set of colts scheduled for 1956.

Little known facts—the winning colt, Coe Juan Captain Jinx, shown by Vickie Ridge, had its leg broken shortly after it was born and had it in a cast for several months. El Diablo Caballo, David Brown's entry which was second in showmanship, had its mare die not long after birth—reportedly when the mare became over-excited at seeing her colt taken from her and suffered a heart attack.

2. Youth Day—considered a tremendous seccess. Plans are being considered to expand this portion of the Fair program, especially the safe driving rodeo.

IMPROVEMENTS
(Present)

1. New barn and tent space—a record number of livestock was handled this year.

2. Lighting system—new circuits were installed and power was boosted. Future plans call for two more light poles on the football field.

3. Merchants' displays—those who displayed reported brisk business (one firm claimed it received 60 to 70 possible "leads" to new customer. After the first of next year, a meeting is planned for local merchants and the Fair Board to discuss plans for next year's Fair.

Identification Of Slain Boy Said Positive

Mother Of Negro, 14, Testifiyng In Trial In Mississippi

SUMNER, Miss. (AP)—Mrs. Mamie Bradley testified today she positively identified her son's body when it arrived in Chicago for burial after being pulled from the Tallahatchie River.

"I looked at the face very carefully. . .I just looked at it very carefully," the 33-year-old mother said softly. "I was able to find out that it was my son, Emmett Louis Till."

The state called Mrs. Bradley as its second witness today to bolster identification of the body as being Till's. The identification is a major point in the state's case against two white men accused of murdering the 14-year-old Negro boy. The defense is expected to contend the boy wolf-whistled at a white woman.

Mrs. Bradley began crying as Dist. Atty. Gerald Chatham handed her a picture of the boy's body. She said she was positive the body in the picture was her son.

ROY BRYANT, 24-year-old storekeeper in nearby Money and his 36-year-old half-brother, J. W. Milam, are accused of murdering the Negro lad and dumping his body into the river.

Lawyers showed her a ring taken from the body after it came from the Tallahatchie River Aug. 31. She identified it as her son's ring.

The silver signet ring is vital in the state's attempt to prove the body in the river was young Till's.

While the trial entered its fourth day in the Tallahatchie County Courthouse, Dist. Atty. Stanny Sanders in adjoining Sunflower County said he was investigating a story which indicated young Till was killed on a plantation near Drew, Miss.

This presented the possibility the trial was being held in a county in which the killing did not take place.

Sanders quoted Dr. T. R. M. Howard, a physician in the all-Negro town of Mound Bayou, about 20 miles west of here, as saying he could produce witnesses who could testify that Till probably was slain near Drew in a plantation shed. Drew is about 22 miles northwest of Money, where Bryant's country store is located.

According to the Negro physician, the Sunflower attorney said, the informants told him they saw four white men, Till and two other Negroes arrive at the shed in a pickup truck.

After a series of screams from the shed, the inforants continued, the truck drove away. The rear compartment was covered and only the white men could be seen, they added.

Now It's Mink Blue Jeans

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Davy Crockett, as any red - blooded boy knows, had his fur cap.

And it seems that every woman, as many a hard-working spouse knows, dreams of a fur coat.

When the little woman shouts for the fur and the young'un choruses for a genuine Davy Crockett coonskin cap, draw yourself up proudly, give 'em a stoney-eyed stare, and proclaim:

"Now look here! I haven't even paid the first installment on my mink blue jeans. My jeweled cowboy buckle is being readied and what good would that be without my six pairs of cowboy boots—a paltry $1,000 a pair."

This year, at the New Mexico State Fair, ranchers will have a chance to see a $10,000 wardrobe of the modern cowboy.

The mink jeans have been making the rounds of the country at the biggest state fairs. But Simon Goldman, who sets up the display in the dairy building, added the rest for a complete ensemble.

"I wanted something real unusual and outstanding," he said. "I'll probably have to hire a couple of guards."

The entire outfit is valued at $10,000.

The blue jeans, costing $3,500, are lined with silk.

"They had to get 22 matched skins to make the blue jeans," Goldman said. "You have to admit, they're luxurious."

The cowboy buckle, made entirely of gold and silver and richly studded with jewels, was fashioned by a silversmith. It costs $1,000. The boots come in sets of six pairs, $1,000 a pair, and a Stetson hat will run $100.

None of the pieces is for sale. But they're pretty to look at.

Diplomat Says Cold War End May Be Ahead

Secretary Of State Gives Views Before U.N. General Assembly

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today declared the world may be entering a decade of peaceful change which will spell the end of the cold war.

In a general policy declaration before the U. N. General Assembly, the U. S. secretary of state stated that the international atmosphere had improved substantially since the 1954 Assembly session and that there was a good chance for constructive decisions during the coming months.

He expressed the belief that the situation was ripe for a solution of the German unification problem and that European security was now better than at any time in history.

The situation in the Far East, he said, also was following a "favorable trend"—thanks to efforts of the U. N. and other governments and individuals to settle differences between Red China and the U. S.

"The will of the world community may have operated to avert another war, the scope of which couldn't surely be limited," Dulles said.

* * *

THE SECRETARY of state appealed to the Assembly to endorse President Eisenhower's proposal for an exchange of military blueprints between the United States and Russia and for aerial inspection on a mutual basis.

This, he said, would provide a basis for a solid advance toward the goal of world arms reductions.

Dulles spoke of the 10 years of cold war conflict in which the world was beset by limited wars, subversion, arms races and inflexible attitudes.

"That phase may now be ending," he said.

"I believe that all four of the heads of government, who were at Geneva, wanted that result and that each contributed to it. In consequence, a new spirit does indeed prevail, with greater flexibility and less brittleness in international relations."

He declined to say which country had gained most at Geneva, but declared that if the improved atmosphere is to be permanent all must gain.

"The summit meeting, if it is to be historic, rather than episodic," he said, "must usher in an era of peaceful change."

He said this era should be one in which governments would renounce the use of war and subversion, accept orderly evolution toward their goals and develop friendly economic intercourse among themselves.

Bulganin Sends Ike Message

London Reports Memo Covers Disarmament

WASHINGTON (AP) — A personal message from Russian Premier Nikolai Bulganin to President Eisenhower was under study today while a U. N. Disarmament subcommittee marked time in New York.

Officials here declined to discuss the message beyond confirming that it had been sent through the State Department to the President's vacation headquarters in Denver.

They said they understood copies went also to British Prime Minister Anthony Eden and French Premier Edgar Faure.

London dispatches said a message to Eden dealt with disarmament.

Meantime a U. S. spokesman at United Nations headquarters in New York disclaimed knowledge of the message but announced a one-day postponement of the Disarmament subcommittee meeting.

* * *

THAT GROUP HAD been planning to wind up its talks today. The talks have been stalemated in recent days.

The United States has been pushing Eisenhower's plan for free aerial inspection and an exchange of military blueprints.

Harold Stassen, Eisenhower's "secretary of disarmament," has predicted that Russia will accept the President's plan.

Vicki's Trek Into Woodland Finally Ends

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Vicki the elephant guzzled tap water and chomped domesticated hay today, having put behind her 11 days of free-lance foraging in the woodlands of Mecklenburg County.

The 6-year-old Indian elephant, who went rambling Sept. 11 from her amusement park home about six miles from downtown Charlotte was run down yesterday by a volunteer posse.

Her pursuers herded her into an open field and let her exhaust herself with aimless running about. Then they circled her methodically with strands of rope, and when the web was completed snared her feet and got an elephant hook in her ear.

Vicki then returned at a leisurely pace with her captors to the amusement park.

Chief Joe Whitley of the Mecklenburg County police was in charge of the beaters, who included off-duty police and firemen.

Elephant man Louie Reed of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus wasn't in on the finish. He tired out. But the elephant's owner, Jack Partlow, and her regular trainer, John (Smoky) Strickland, were there to soothe the frightened Vicki.

Rebel Leader Asks Accord

New Argentine Boss To Be Sworn Friday

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Maj. Gen. Eduardo Lonardi's new Argentine government appealed today for the rebuilding of the revolt-divided nation through "peace and work. . . in the pious light of forgetfulness."

Lonardi, 59-year-old commander of the brief revolt which toppled Juan Peron after a decade of dictatorship, was scheduled to fly to Buenos Aires from his native Cordoba tomorrow to be installed as provisional president.

The appeal for peace came from Cordoba's radio "Voice of Liberty," which said, "It is better not to talk of the past, as our slogan is 'There are neither victors nor defeated.' "

Referring to ousted President Juan D. Peron, the broadcast lashed out at the "insane egotism of a man who did not control his ambition and tried to throw down what was dearest to the Argentine people."

The peace agreement concluded yesterday provided for Lonardi and other rebel leaders to take over from the junta of pro-Peron generals which took control of the central government after Peron's resignation.

PERON WAS reported to be still aboard the Paraguayan gunboat in Buenos Aires harbor where he found refuge Tuesday. The new government did not indicate whether it would persist in previous demands that he surrender or let him escape into exile.

Agricultural Advisory Group Eyes Sagging Farm Income

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration looked to the National Agricultural Advisory Commission today for suggestions on how to bolster sagging farm income.

The 18 - member bipartisan body of farm leaders began a two-day quarterly meeting with that as its major problem.

Secretary of Agricuture Benson said the commission will go over proposals for aiding farmers by channeling more money into their pockets.

The secretary said last week that the administration will offer specific recommendations to Congress. Suggestions of the commission doubtless will help formulate administration proposals.

The commission was appointed by President Eisenhower to review government farm policies and programs and to offer advice on ways to improve them. It played a major role in the development of the farm program which the President recommend to Congress last year and which was written into law.

* * *

THAT PROGRAM features flexible price supports which this year supplanted the high, rigid supports of the Truman era.

The commission meets behind closed doors. It rarely makes its discussions or recommendations public, and is expected to follow that policy on this week's meeting.

The meeting comes at a time when Democrats (and some Republicans) are sharply criticizing the administration's farm program and contending that Eisenhower is allowing agriculture to sink into a depression.

The group is expected to give serious consideration to a proposal that the government offer farmers substantial payments for retiring upwards of 35 million acres of surplus land from the production of cash crops.

The commission also may pick up proposals that the government adopt a multiple-price system for such export crops as cotton, wheat and rice.

Opposed heretofore by Benson, such proposals would support domestic prices of these crops at relatively high levels while allowing them to move into export markets at lower prices.

Dean William L. Myers of the College of Agriculture at Cornell University is chairman of the commission.

Newest Banking Gadget Unveiled

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP)—"Erma," latest wonder of the electronics age, was introduced to the banking world yesterday by the Stanford Research Institute and the Bank of America.

"Erma" (electronic recording machine accounting) can credit individual accounts with deposits, debit withdrawals, remember details of all transactions, maintain customer's correct balance, accept stop-payments and hold orders, sort checks, prevent overdrafts, automatically calculate the service charge for each account and at month's end turn out a complete printed statement for the customer at the rate of 600 lines per minute.

Worried Appeal Issued Here For Blood List

Officials of the Pickaway County Red Cross Chapter repeated their worried call for blood donors today, warning that a continued lack of support for the bloodmobile can lead to a reduction in blood supplies for hospitals all over this region.

The bloodmobile will be in Circleville, at the Methodist Church, from 10:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. Friday. A special appeal has been issued in an effort to meet the county's quota — 150 pints of blood.

Appointments to donate blood can be made by phoning 336. Although appointments are desired, for the convenience of the donors themselves, "walk-in" donors — who for some reason cannot make plans in advance—are also encouraged.

More than 22,000 pints of blood were used during the first six months of this year by the various hospitals in the 27 counties included in the regional blood program.

* * *

BERGER HOSPITAL participates in the regional setup and thus depends, to some degree, upon turnouts for the local bloodmobile visits.

The cost met by the local Red Cross chapter for eight visits of the bloodmobile each year has been estimated at $3,000. But money alone cannot meet the full needs, officials here emphasized.

Blood donors are essential to keep the program effective.

AAA Urging Cut In Auto Power

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Automobile Assn. called on the nation's car manufacturers today to ease up on speed and horsepower and to put more emphasis on safety, in forthcoming models.

A resolution adopted unanimously at the AAA's 53rd annual meeting said the great need today is for "ways of protecting the driver against his own mistakes."

The organizations said "reasonable reserve power" is desirable "for overtaking and passing, and in emergency conditions," but it declared:

"Power above that would seem to impose on the car user an unwarranted potential hazard."

U. S. Planning To Dicker On Tariff Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — American tariff setters have offered to bargain toward lower U. S. duties on any or all of 900 types of foreign goods in return for like concessions on U. S. products sent abroad.

The State Department yesterday listed the items, ranging from automobiles to Scotch whisky, which will be up for negotiation at an international conference next January.

The listed goods accounted for $1,772,000,000 worth, or about 17 per cent, of the total imports into this country in 1954.

The department kept secret what tariff slashes it will ask in exchange at the January conference of 25 non-Communist nations in Geneva. The meeting, fourth of its kind since World War II, looms as the most far-reaching in the easing of world trade barriers since the first conference in 1947.

The administration has the power to lower U. S. tariffs rates in effect on Jan. 1, 1955, as much as 15 per cent (5 per cent a year for three years) under the Reciprocal Trade Act extension passed by Congress this year.

State Department officials said tariffs would not necessarily be lowered on all the 900 items. American producers, importers and other interested persons will be asked to give their views at government hearings beginning Oct. 31, they said, and no concessions will be granted which would imperil U. S. industries or hurt production essential to defense.

Father Appealing Anew To Kidnaper

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The father of a tiny infant stolen from a hospital crib pleaded again today for his son's safe return. Fears increased for the baby's life.

A milk formula which could keep little Ribert alive was broadcast and published.

Dr. Sanford Marcus pleaded for the kidnaper to "take the baby to the nearest church. We will not prosecute."

Gallipolis Editor, 34, Killed By Estranged, Ailing Wife

GALLIPOLIS (AP) — Alfred C. Schuldt, 34-year-old sports editor of the Gallipolis Tribune, was shot and killed today by his estranged wife, Ruth, on a farm home about 10 miles southwest of here.

Sheriff George Ehman said Schuldt was shot in the heart with a 12-gauge shotgun charge.

Scene of the shooting was the home of Mrs. Schuldt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Mossbarger. She had been staying there in recent weeks and officers said the editor was in the habit of calling on her before he went to work.

Today Schuldt arrived at about 7 a. m. He was dead 10 minutes later.

The sheriff said Mrs. Schuldt took the keys from his car, apparently wanting him to stay there instead of going to work.

Schuldt went upstairs to get his wife's father to see if he could persuade her to give up the keys. The two men walked into the kitchen. Mrs. Schuldt was standing in a corner by a pantry door, holding the shotgun.

"Ruth, will you give me the keys?" Schuldt asked.

Then, according to the sheriff, Mrs. Schuldt raised the shotgun, firing it as she still was raising it. The charge struck Schuldt just below the heart.

Coroner Donald R. Warehime returned a verdict of homicide.

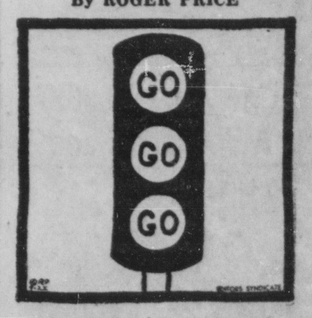
Mrs. Schuldt, who had received psychiatric treatment in West Virginia in recent months, was taken to Holzer Hospital here. She is a graduate of that hospital's school of nursing.

The 33-year-old brunette and the sports editor marked their ninth wedding anniversary only last week. At that time, Schuldt visited her at her parents' home.

They were the parents of four children, the youngest, Alfred C. Schuldt Jr., four months. Friends said that after the birth of Alfred Jr., the mother showed signs of mental illness. The husband and wife became estranged not long after that, and she received several weeks' treatment at the Lakin State Hospital, W. Va.

DROODLES

By ROGER PRICE



"HEP TRAFFIC SIGNAL"
This type signal will no doubt be frowned on by certain "square" traffic authorities but I dig it the most, man. And I think it's time we jazzed up our streets and highways. Besides having real cool signs like this, Policemen should wear berets and goatees and carry clarinets instead of clubs; and Judges should rap their gavels with a solid four-four beat and sentence reckless drivers to 30 days of Guy Lombardo records. Parking meters will be connected to Muzak so when you put in your dime you'll get a half hour of hi-fi be-bop. Crazy, huh? But with all this rockin' and rollin' we mustn't forget to drive safely. We want to be real gone—but not for good. You dig me?

THE SECRETARY of state appealed to the Assembly to endorse President Eisenhower's proposal for an exchange of military blueprints between the United States and Russia and for aerial inspection on a mutual basis.

This, he said, would provide a basis for a solid advance toward the goal of world arms reductions.

Dulles spoke of the 10 years of cold war conflict in which the world was beset by limited wars, subversion, arms races and inflexible attitudes.

"That phase may now be ending," he said.

"I believe that all four of the heads of government, who were at Geneva, wanted that result and that each contributed to it. In consequence, a new spirit does indeed prevail, with greater flexibility and less brittleness in international relations."

He declined to say which country had gained most at Geneva, but declared that if the improved atmosphere is to be permanent all must gain.

"The summit meeting, if it is to be historic, rather than episodic," he said, "must usher in an era of peaceful change."

He said this era should be one in which governments would renounce the use of war and subversion, accept orderly evolution toward their goals and develop friendly economic intercourse among themselves.

Bulganin Sends Ike Message

London Reports Memo Covers Disarmament

WASHINGTON (AP) — A personal message from Russian Premier Nikolai Bulganin to President Eisenhower was under study today while a U. N. Disarmament subcommittee marked time in New York.

Officials here declined to discuss the message beyond confirming that it had been sent through the State Department to the President's vacation headquarters in Denver.

They said they understood copies went also to British Prime Minister Anthony Eden and French Premier Edgar Faure.

London dispatches said a message to Eden dealt with disarmament.

Meantime a U. S. spokesman at United Nations headquarters in New York disclaimed knowledge of the message but announced a one-day postponement of the Disarmament subcommittee meeting.

* * *

THAT GROUP HAD been planning to wind up its talks today. The talks have been stalemated in recent days.

The United States has been pushing Eisenhower's plan for free aerial inspection and an exchange of military blueprints.

Harold Stassen, Eisenhower's "secretary of disarmament," has predicted that Russia will accept the President's plan.

Vicki's Trek Into Woodland Finally Ends

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Vicki the elephant guzzled tap water and chomped domesticated hay today, having put behind her 11 days of free-lance foraging in the woodlands of Mecklenburg County.

The 6-year-old Indian elephant, who went rambling Sept. 11 from her amusement park home about six miles from downtown Charlotte was run down yesterday by a volunteer posse.

Her pursuers herded her into an open field and let her exhaust herself with aimless running about. Then they circled her methodically with strands of rope, and when the web was completed snared her feet and got an elephant hook in her ear.

Vicki then returned at a leisurely pace with her captors to the amusement park.

Chief Joe Whitley of the Mecklenburg County police was in charge of the beaters, who included off-duty police and firemen.

Elephant man Louie Reed of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus wasn't in on the finish. He tired out. But the elephant's owner, Jack Partlow, and her regular trainer, John (Smoky) Strickland, were there to soothe the frightened Vicki.

Rebel Leader Asks Accord

New Argentine Boss To Be Sworn Friday

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Maj. Gen. Eduardo Lonardi's new Argentine government appealed today for the rebuilding of the revolt-divided nation through "peace and work. . . . in the pious light of forgetfulness."

Lonardi, 59-year-old commander of the brief revolt which toppled Juan Peron after a decade of dictatorship, was scheduled to fly to Buenos Aires from his native Cordoba tomorrow to be installed as provisional president.

The appeal for peace came from Cordoba's radio "Voice of Liberty," which said, "It is better not to talk of the past, as our slogan is 'There are neither victors nor defeated.' "

Referring to ousted President Juan D. Peron, the broadcast lashed out at the "insane egotism of a man who did not control his ambition and tried to throw down what was dearest to the Argentine people."

The peace agreement concluded yesterday provided for Lonardi and other rebel leaders to take over from the junta of pro-Peron generals which took control of the central government after Peron's resignation.

* * *

PERON WAS reported to be still aboard the Paraguayan gunboat in Buenos Aires harbor where he found refuge Tuesday. The new government did not indicate whether it would persist in previous demands that he surrender or let him escape into exile.

Agricultural Advisory Group Eyes Sagging Farm Income

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration looked to the National Agricultural Advisory Commission today for suggestions on how to bolster sagging farm income.

The 18 - member bipartisan body of farm leaders began a two-day quarterly meeting with that as its major problem.

Secretary of Agricuture Benson said the commission will go over proposals for aiding farmers by channeling more money into their pockets.

The secretary said last week that the administration will offer specific recommendations to Congress. Suggestions of the commission doubtless will help formulate administration proposals.

The commission was appointed by President Eisenhower to review government farm policies and programs and to offer advice on ways to improve them. It played a major role in the development of the farm program which the President recommend to Congress last year and which was written into law.

* * *

THAT PROGRAM features flexible price supports which this year supplanted the high, rigid supports of the Truman era.

The commission meets behind closed doors. It rarely makes its discussions or recommendations public, and is expected to follow that policy on this week's meeting.

The meeting comes at a time when Democrats (and some Republicans) are sharply criticizing the administration's farm program and contending that Eisenhower is allowing agriculture to sink into a depression.

The group is expected to give serious consideration to a proposal that the government offer farmers substantial payments for retiring upwards of 35 million acres of surplus land from the production of cash crops.

The commission also may pick up proposals that the government adopt a multiple-price system for such export crops as cotton, wheat and rice.

Opposed heretofore by Benson, such proposals would support domestic prices of these crops at relatively high levels while allowing them to move into export markets at lower prices.

Dean William L. Myers of the College of Agriculture at Cornell University is chairman of the commission.

Worried Appeal Issued Here For Blood List

Officials of the Pickaway County Red Cross Chapter repeated their worried call for blood donors today, warning that a continued lack of support for the bloodmobile can lead to a reduction in blood supplies for hospitals all over this region.

The bloodmobile will be in Circleville, at the Methodist Church, from 10:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. Friday. A special appeal has been issued in an effort to meet the county's quota — 150 pints of blood.

Appointments to donate blood can be made by phoning 336. Although appointments are desired, for the convenience of the donors themselves, "walk-in" donors — who for some reason cannot make plans in advance—are also encouraged.

More than 22,000 pints of blood were used during the first six months of this year by the various hospitals in the 27 counties included in the regional blood program.

* * *

BERGER HOSPITAL participates in the regional setup and thus depends, to some degree, upon turnouts for the local bloodmobile visits.

The cost met by the local Red Cross chapter for eight visits of the bloodmobile each year has been estimated at $3,000. But money alone cannot meet the full needs, officials here emphasized.

Blood donors are essential to keep the program effective.

Father Appealing Anew To Kidnaper

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The father of a tiny infant stolen from a hospital crib pleaded again today for his son's safe return. Fears increased for the baby's life.

Rewards totaling $5,000 were offered for the return of 6½-pound Robert Marcus, unharmed. Robert is 6 days old, if alive.

A milk formula which could keep little Ribert alive was broadcast and published.

Dr. Sanford Marcus pleaded for the kidnaper to "take the baby to the nearest church. We will not prosecute."

Marciano Plans June Title Defense

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, unmarked except for a red blemish under his left eye, said today he would defend his title again next June against one of four opponents, Bob Baker, Nino Valdes, Hurricane Jackson or Floyd Patterson.

After his knockout of Archie Moore last night, the champion had hinted he might retire from the ring. See story on sports page.

AAA Urging Cut In Auto Power

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Automobile Assn. called on the nation's car manufacturers today to ease up on speed and horsepower and to put more emphasis on safety, in forthcoming models.

A resolution adopted unanimously at the AAA's 53rd annual meeting said the great need today is for "ways of protecting the driver against his own mistakes."

The organizations said "reasonable reserve power" is desirable "for overtaking and passing, and in emergency conditions," but it declared:

"Power above that would seem to impose on the car user an unwarranted potential hazard."

U.S. Polio Total Still Declining

WASHINGTON (AP) — New polio cases reported last week to the public health service totaled 1,950, continuing a weekly decrease.

The total was 59 below the 2,009 new cases in the week ended Sept. 10 and was 724 under the 2,764 in the comparable 1954 week.

For 955 thus far there have been 20,165 cases, compared with 23,998 up to this time a year ago.

A health service spokesman said indications now are that the year's total may drop as low as 30,000. The 1954 total was 38,741.

U. S. Planning To Dicker On Tariff Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — American tariff setters have offered to bargain toward lower U. S. duties on any or all of 900 types of foreign goods in return for like concessions on U. S. products sent abroad.

The State Department yesterday listed the items, ranging from automobiles to Scotch whisky, which will be up for negotiation at an international conference next January.

The listed goods accounted for $1,772,000,000 worth, or about 17 per cent, of the total imports into this country in 1954.

The department kept secret what tariff slashes it will ask in exchange at the January conference of 25 non-Communist nations in Geneva. The meeting, fourth of its kind since World War II, looms as the most far-reaching in the easing of world trade barriers since the first conference in 1947.

The administration has the power to lower U. S. tariffs rates in effect on Jan. 1, 1955, as much as 15 per cent (5 per cent a year for three years) under the Reciprocal Trade Act extension passed by Congress this year.

State Department officials said tariffs would not necessarily be lowered on all the 900 items. American producers, importers and other interested persons will be asked to give their views at government hearings beginning Oct. 31, they said, and no concessions will be granted which would imperil U. S. industries or hurt production essential to defense.

Gallipolis Editor, 34, Killed By Estranged, Ailing Wife

GALLIPOLIS (AP) — Alfred C. Schuldt, 34-year-old sports editor of the Gallipolis Tribune, was shot and killed today by his estranged wife, Ruth, on a farm home about 10 miles southwest of here.

Sheriff George Ehman said Schuldt was shot in the heart with a 12-gauge shotgun charge.

Scene of the shooting was the home of Mrs. Schuldt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Mossbarger. She had been staying there in recent weeks and officers said the editor was in the habit of calling on her before he went to work.

Today Schuldt arrived at about 7 a. m. He was dead 10 minutes later.

The sheriff said Mrs. Schuldt took the keys from his car, apparently wanting him to stay there instead of going to work.

Schuldt went upstairs to get his wife's father to see if he could persuade her to give up the keys. The two men walked into the kitchen. Mrs. Schuldt was standing in a corner by a pantry door, holding the shotgun.

"Ruth, will you give me the keys?" Schuldt asked.

Then, according to the sheriff, Mrs. Schuldt raised the shotgun, firing it as she still was raising it. The charge struck Schuldt just below the heart.

Coroner Donald R. Warehime returned a verdict of homicide.

Mrs. Schuldt, who had received psychiatric treatment in West Virginia in recent months, was taken to Holzer Hospital here. She is a graduate of that hospital's school of nursing.

The 33-year-old brunette and the sports editor marked their ninth wedding anniversary only last week. At that time, Schuldt visited her at her parents' home.

They were the parents of four children, the youngest, Alfred C. Schuldt Jr., four months. Friends said that after the birth of Alfred Jr., the mother showed signs of mental illness. The husband and wife became estranged not long after that, and she received several weeks' treatment at the Lakin State Hospital, W. Va.

"HEP TRAFFIC SIGNAL"

This type signal will no doubt be frowned on by certain "square" traffic authorities but I dig it the most, man. And I think it's time we jazzed up our streets and highways. Besides having real cool signs like this, Policemen should wear berets and goatees and carry clarinets instead of clubs; and Judges should rap their gavels with a solid four-four beat and sentence reckless drivers to 30 days of Guy Lombardo records. Parking meters will be connected to Muzak so when you put in your dime you'll get a half hour of hi fi be-bop. Crazy, huh? But with all this rockin' and rollin' we mustn't forget to drive safely. We want to be real gone—but not for good. You dig me?

Reid Reviews Fair Activities For Summary

ing of two or three Fair Board members, a couple of Jaycees and several local business men, will be formed to study the problem.

One possible solution, according to Reid, would be to put up one section at a time and keep adding to it as more money became available. He said that the Jaycees already have contributed $1,000 towards the grandstand (the complete project has been estimated to cost as much as $80,000).

Plans for the grandstand call for room for merchants to display their products, modern rest rooms and concession stands. One of the top criticisms reported to Fair Board members is the lack of rest rooms at the Fairgrounds (there is only one men's and one women's rest room in the Coliseum for the entire Fairgrounds).

2. Blacktopping and leveling of the incline leading from the Midway to the Coliseum and parking areas—numerous complaints were received by the Fair Board not only on twisted ankles suffered by women wearing high heels but also the dust and dirt which swirled up into the air.

* * *

REID, on behalf of the Fair Board, paid special tribute to those responsible for supplying electric power to the Fairgrounds. Two plaques were presented to local utility firms—one to H. Newell Stevenson, who represented Ohio Midland Electric Co. and South Central Rural Electric Co., and to Leonard Lytle, as representative for the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.

Special praise went to the electricians who worked at the Fairgrounds continuously. These included: Russ Gibbs, Paul Counts and Mose Cupp.

Reid said that the public is cordially invited to attend Fair Board meetings, which are held the second Monday of every month. The next meeting, he said, would be Oct. 10.

Dems Matching Budget Records

WASHINGTON (AP) — Campaigning Democrats will stress a contention that the Eisenhower administration "did not come close to matching the Democrats for sound budgetary performance."

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler yesterday sent party workers a "fact sheet" reporting an estimated three-year deficit of $9.3 billion under the Republicans compared with a surplus of $4.3 billion during four peace-time years of the Truman regime.

He urged Democrats to "hammer home the truth" that the Truman administration balanced the budget and produced a surplus in two of the four years 1947-1950.

Harley Bush, Retired Worker, Recalls War-Ending Whistles

Maybe it is true that the city's new air raid siren—if and when necessary — can jolt the whole countryside with a sudden alarm.

But if the apparatus should ever fail, or prove inadequate, Harley W. Bush, of 373 E. Corwin St., claims Circleville can always be aroused to any emergency by a good, old-fashioned, whooping blast from the steam whistle at Eshelman's Mill. And he should know.

At 71, Bush can look back over a span of many years when, as a fireman at local milling firms, he pulled on whistle cords to announce the joyous end of two world wars. Retired for the past three years, he still recalls vividly how he blew the whistle to announce the surrender of the Kaiser's army at the end of the first world conflict.

Bush at that time was employed by the Circleville Milling Company. And later, when that concern became part of the Eshelman company, he continued on as fireman.

* * *

FINALLY THEN came May of 1945, and another long whistle, when the Nazis signed peace terms to touch off V-E Day celebrations. And a short time later, he pulled again on the cord to signify that Japan also had accepted the Allies' peace terms.

For the blast that tipped off the whole district to V-J Day, Bush recalls he "tied it down for about 20 minutes"—cutting loose a loud howl that made the whistle heard "as far away as Stoutsville."

Any time it is necessary, the oldtimer insists, the whistle at Eshelman's Mill can make itself heard all over Circleville — even amid the roar and clatter of traffic at noontime around Court and Main!

Modern years have brought with them new and screaming devices to alert the populace to any danger. But none of them can really ever take the place of the war-ending whistles that linger in the retired workman's memory.

They have treasured echoes that nothing else can match.

City Police Cruiser Crashes Into Car

Circleville's new police cruiser received $300 damage in an early morning collision Thursday.

Police Chief Elmer Merriman said that an oncoming motorist on Watt St. apparently forced Officer Bill Brungs to crash into a parked car. Brungs said the car came straight at him, and that he swerved to the right in an attempt to avoid a crash, the chief added.

Brungs was not injured in the accident. The unidentified motorist did not stop.

The new cruiser was purchased earlier this year.

Plans for the grandstand call for room for merchants to display their products, modern rest rooms and concession stands. One of the top criticisms reported to Fair Board members is the lack of rest rooms at the Fairgrounds (there is only one men's and one women's rest room in the Coliseum for the entire Fairgrounds).

2. Blacktopping and leveling of the incline leading from the Midway to the Coliseum and parking areas—numerous complaints were received by the Fair Board not only on twisted ankles suffered by women wearing high heels but also the dust and dirt which swirled up into the air.

* * *

REID, on behalf of the Fair Board, paid special tribute to those responsible for supplying electric power to the Fairgrounds. Two plaques were presented to local utility firms—one to H. Newell Stevenson, who represented Ohio Midland Electric Co. and South Central Rural Electric Co., and to Leonard Lytle, as representative for the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.

Special praise went to the electricians who worked at the Fairgrounds continuously. These included: Russ Gibbs, Paul Counts and Mose Cupp.

Reid said that the public is cordially invited to attend Fair Board meetings, which are held the second Monday of every month. The next meeting, he said, would be Oct. 10.

Dems Matching Budget Records

WASHINGTON (AP) — Campaigning Democrats will stress a contention that the Eisenhower administration "did not come close to matching the Democrats for sound budgetary performance."

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler yesterday sent party workers a "fact sheet" reporting an estimated three-year deficit of $9.3 billion under the Republicans compared with a surplus of $4.3 billion during four peace-time years of the Truman regime.

He urged Democrats to "hammer home the truth" that the Truman administration balanced the budget and produced a surplus in two of the four years 1947-1950.

Harley Bush, Retired Worker, Recalls War-Ending Whistles

Maybe it is true that the city's new air raid siren—if and when necessary — can jolt the whole countryside with a sudden alarm.

But if the apparatus should ever fail, or prove inadequate, Harley W. Bush, of 373 E. Corwin St., claims Circleville can always be aroused to any emergency by a good, old-fashioned, whooping blast from the steam whistle at Eshelman's Mill. And he should know.

At 71, Bush can look back over a span of many years when, as a fireman at local milling firms, he pulled on whistle cords to announce the joyous end of two world wars. Retired for the past three years, he still recalls vividly how he blew the whistle to announce the surrender of the Kaiser's army at the end of the first world conflict.

Bush at that time was employed by the Circleville Milling Company. And later, when that concern became part of the Eshelman company, he continued on as fireman.

* * *

FINALLY THEN came May of 1945, and another long whistle, when the Nazis signed peace terms to touch off V-E Day celebrations. And a short time later, he pulled again on the cord to signify that Japan also had accepted the Allies' peace terms.

For the blast that tipped off the whole district to V-J Day, Bush recalls he "tied it down for about 20 minutes"—cutting loose a loud howl that made the whistle heard "as far away as Stoutsville."

Any time it is necessary, the oldtimer insists, the whistle at Eshelman's Mill can make itself heard all over Circleville — even amid the roar and clatter of traffic at noontime around Court and Main!

Modern years have brought with them new and screaming devices to alert the populace to any danger. But none of them can really ever take the place of the war-ending whistles that linger in the retired workman's memory.

They have treasured echoes that nothing else can match.

City Police Cruiser Crashes Into Car

Circleville's new police cruiser received $300 damage in an early morning collision Thursday.

Police Chief Elmer Merriman said that an oncoming motorist on Watt St. apparently forced Officer Bill Brungs to crash into a parked car. Brungs said the car came straight at him, and that he swerved to the right in an attempt to avoid a crash, the chief added.

Brungs was not injured in the accident. The unidentified motorist did not stop.

The new cruiser was purchased earlier this year.

Autumn shopping this year features an excellent offering of grapes.

One of the greatest grape-growing areas in the world is the Chautauqua grape belt, the section which comprises the shores of Lake Erie in the states of New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio.

The grape grew wild in America as far back as history records. Today, they are so widely cultivated that they rank in commercial importance among our first four fruits. For the country as a whole, the commercial era in grape culture began about 1800; but it was not until 1850 that the growing of native-bunch grapes for table use began to receive serious attention.

Ohio grapes are coming to market now and will continue for a time. Since a considerable quantity of northern Ohio grapes go to juice pressers, the volume available for home processing into jams, jellies and juice is rather limited. The use of grapes as a table fruit, for making jelly and for paste confections is constantly expanding. And the grape still holds its own on the home canning schedule.

Grapes are on the market from July through March, with the peak season being August through December. The early grapes come from California; the Eastern grapes follow from September through November.

* * *

THERE ARE four general classes of grapes: table, wine, raisin and sweet juice.

"Concord" is one of the better Eastern, or American, varieties for juice. It is a blue grape which grows in medium sized bunches. It is seeded and comes to market mainly during September and October.

"Niagara", another Eastern grown grape, is white. It is grown in large bunches and the berries are large.

The "Old World" varieties are grown mostly in the western states. "Thompson Seedless" is one of these. This variety has small white berries but grows in large bunches. It is available in the market from July through October. "Tokay", or "Flame Tokay", is a red grape with large berries growing in large bunches. It is on the market from September through November.

* * *

WHEN BUYING grapes look for:

(1) Plump, fresh, mature grapes in well-formed bunches, with the individual grapes attached firmly to the stem;

(2) Appropriate color for the variety—dark varieties should be free from green tinge; white or green varieties should have an amber cast when fully ripe.

One pound of fresh grapes yields one quart of fresh grape juice, or four servings. One bushel (48 pounds) of "Concord" grapes equals 16 quarts of canned juice. A 12-quart basket (18 pounds) of grapes equals 6 quarts of canned juice.

Grapes offer variety in the diet and sugar.

As a whole, grapes do not store well. When bought, the grapes should be used as soon as possible. If they must be kept for a few days, sort carefully. Put the grapes on trays and refrigerate.

OTHER ITEMS which top the list in current shopping news are green peppers and red meat.

Green peppers provide a good source of variety for main dishes as well as salads. They are very high in food value, containing large amounts of vitamins A and C and smaller amounts of riboflavin, thiamin and niacin, plus some calcium, iron and phosphorus.

The price of meat animals is dropping off again. Wise food shoppers will look for economical buys in all cuts of pork.

"Queen Anne legs" are found in furniture.

U.S. Consumer Items Showing Rise In Prices

Summer's Production Cost Hike Starting To Reach Surface

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Price rises—starting at the production level in the summer — are now popping out on consumer items. Testing time lies just ahead.

Automobiles, gasoline, television sets, hats, floor tiles — one or more manufacturers in these fields have raised prices this week. And the parade of higher prices continues in fields that consumers encounter only indirectly and later on after the boosts raise production costs — electric transformers, oil field equipment, bleached sulphite pulp, nickel-chromium alloys.

Testing time will come when the consumer reacts. Manufacturers argue that prices must go up because the cost of labor and industrial materials have gone up. Retailers argue that one of the chief reasons for the booming demand for consumer goods has been price paring that offered the public bargains — that the demand could shrivel under the frost of higher prices this fall.

Both, admittedly, aren't sure what the consumer will do. But both expect to know the answer before many more weeks.

The consumer's first interest is likely to be in the higher price tags on the 1956 model cars.

Ford is taking the first step. Its new Fords will be higher by from $46 to $99. Its Lincolns already have been raised.

Others in the industry haven't announced yet. But many expect price hikes of roughly five per cent.

The auto makers can point to a sizable pay increase for their workers and to the higher prices they must pay for steel, copper and other materials that go into their 1956 models.

Public reaction to the new models and to the higher prices will settle that hot question in the industry—how much of the big sales total of the 1955 models was due to the attractive deals which many of the buyers were able to make, and how much to the striking colors and other new features.

Socony Mobil Oil Co. is raising the wholesale price of gasoline a half cent a gallon in 11 eastern states.

The Hat Corp. of America and the John B. Stetson Co. are raising prices on some of their hat lines — although not all. This follows the doubling of prices of hatter's fur in world markets because of a shortage.

But some of the price news this week makes good reading for the consumer.

Heavy supplies of meat pouring into Midwest markets have been lowering wholesale prices there.

Singer Peggy Lee Insists On Being A Perfectionist

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The living room of Peggy Lee's hilltop home was rocking.

The pianist was pounding out a rhythm; the guitarist and bass fiddle player strummed furiously; the drummer and bongo artist assaulted their instruments. Leaning against the piano and moaning in throaty tones was Peggy herself, dressed plainly in a yellow smock but glamorous with her tightly combed platinum hair.

First she delivered "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" as it has never been swung before. She followed with a frantic version of "Do I Love You?"

After a half-hour of this, she called a halt for sandwiches and iced tea and collapsed in a chair.

"This is awfully hard work," sighed the singer, who was rehearsing for a date at Las Vegas. "I've got a version of 'Begin The Beguine' in double time that makes my stomach hurt when I'm through. I don't think I can do it every night.

The trouble with Peggy is that she's a perfectionist. She won't go out and sing the same old songs with the same old arrangements. She is constantly seeking new and better renditions.

It's this failure to compromise that marks her whole career and makes her a pensive, disquieted girl. Of her movie career, she said:

"I've had opportunities to do pictures in years past. But they were generally for the fluffy, gay musicals. I'm not against them; some people are great in them. But they're just not for me. I'm not that way. I couldn't do anything I don't believe in."

Youngstown Tube Plans Expansion

CLEVELAND (AP) — Further expansion is planned by the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. in both Youngstown and Chicago districts, J. L. Mauthe, president of the firm, has announced.

No cost estimate of the expansion was made, but Mauthe said his firm's capital expenditures next year probably will be double the $40 million being spent this year.

He told of the expansion plans in an address at a luncheon meeting of the Cleveland Society of Security Analysts.

Pennies Caimed Not Legal Tender

DOWNEY, Calif. (AP)—When Raymond P. Vinzant lost a Small Claims Court judgment of $88.19 to Anthony J. Rivera he tried to pay off in pennies, but Rivera refused, claiming the coppers aren't legal tender.

Vinzant dumped the 8,819 pennies from a bucket onto a sidewalk, saying: "Here's your money." A crowd gathered as the men disputed the question of legal tender and sidewalk lawyers popped up all around with free advice.

Municipal Judge A. Daniel Boone was consulted and he expressed the opinion Vinzant had not paid in legal tender, so sheriff's deputies ordered Vinzant to clear the sidewalk. He had to scoop up his coppers and put them back in his bucket.

New Glass-Making Methods Detailed

TOLEDO (AP)—Improved processing methods were reported here at the new Owens-Illinois technical center.

The new center, largest of its kind in the world, was constructed and equipped at a cost of $5 million. It is staffed by 500 research scientists, engineers and technologists.

Carl R. McGowen, Owens-Illinoi. president, predicted improved processing methods would result in remarkable changes in glass container manufacture and bring about "substantial savings" in such fields as food packaging.

Anti-Lausche Dems Worry About 'Favorite Son' Role

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Anti-Laus Democrats show mounting concern over Tennessee Sen. Kefauver's reluctance to seek national convention delegates in Ohio.

Their fears apparently stem from persistent reports that Kefauver prefers to avoid a delegate contest with Gov. Frank J. Lausche in the 1956 primary.

The five-term governor continues mum about his plans. But friends recall that at the recent governors' conference in Chicago Lausche told newsmen he "might be a candidate for favorite son next year".

Because of Lausche's vote-getting prowess, his party foes may be hard pressed for a "favorite son" presidential candidate if Kefauver continues coy.

County chairmen in northern Ohio who organized apart from Lausche - dominated Democratic state headquarters have been playing footsie with Kefauver.

Congressman Wayne L. Hays, Democrat of Flushing in eastern Ohio's 18th District, and Don Gosney, party chairman in Columbiana County, insist Kefauver will field a full slate of 54 delegate candidates.

But friends of Timothy S. Hogan, Cincinnati attorney described as the real power behind Kefauver in Ohio, discount such talk.

They say Kefauver isn't likely to jump into the presidential contest unless New York Gov. Averell Harriman appears to be overtaking Adlai E. Stevenson, the 1952 nominee, in popularity for nomination again.

In their opinion, the younger Kefauver will point for 1960 for tactical reasons without taking himself out completely as a presidential possibility in 1956. He still will be senator in 1960.

But friends speculate that the situation may remain cloudy until after Kefauver and tub - thumper Hays return from European junkets.

The Tennesseean elected all 27 Ohio delegate candidates in 1952. The Democratic state organization also elected 27 delegates pledged to former U.S. Sen. Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland as "favorite son".

Bulkley, once a power in Democratic circles, had been in retirement since 1938. His showing against Kefauver, then at the peak of popularity as a crime - buster, demonstrated the difficulty of bringing a "favorite son" candidate out of political retirement.

Both Stevenson and Harriman have indicated they would not enter delegate contests in the primaries next spring. Governor Lausche's political record in Ohio marks him as a formidable candidate should he decide to try for "favorite son", a role he formerly spurned.

Thus Kefauver's apparent unwillingness to seek delegates to the convention next summer in Chicago poses a tough problem for northern Democrats seeking to re-organize the party in Ohio.

State statutes requires a presidential candidate to give his written consent to each delegate candidate running under his name in the primary. The deadline for filing petitions is Feb. 8. Because of Ohio's early filing, delegates usually are pledged to a "favorite son" in advance of national conventions.

Trout Stream Changed For Ike's Fishing

FRASER, Colo. (AP)—They have changed the course of the Rocky Mountain stream where President Eisenhower fishes here to make it easier to catch trout.

The President and his host, Denver investment banker Aksel Nielsen, stood on the bank of St. Louis Creek recently and helped supervise a bulldozer and a steam shovel in the operation.

The swift-flowing creek, which meanders through Nielsen's ranch, is being tapped to increase the supply of water to Denver, 70 miles to the southeast. The water will be piped over the Continental Divide to the eastern slope.

Murray Snyder, assistant White House press secretary, said the President and Nielsen, who have been fishing for trout here since 1940, have been planning for years how to alter the course of the stream to improve the catch. They decided to go ahead when it became apparent that the Denver water diversion project might lower the stream level to such an extent as to spoil the fishing.

So they had a new channel cut with the purpose of slowing down the flow, and in doing that created a few deep pools where trout like to lurk.

Lancaster Postal Case Is Pondered

COLUMBUS (AP)—Federal Judge Mell Underwood yesterday reserved his decision in the case involving James D. Cave, former Lancaster postal clerk, accused of placing cancelled stamps on registered mail over a period of a year and making $400 for himself.

Cave's attorney told the court the money has been repaid the postoffice and that Cave, an overseas veteran and father of three children, can get another job if placed on probation.

Sawmill Worker Killed By Blade

MARIETTA (AP)—A sawmill worker fell headlong into a whirling saw blade near here yesterday and was killed.

Investigators said Clarence Mercer, 60, of near Marietta, lost his balance while he was at work shoving a log against the whining blade. The mill is located about five miles west of here.

U.S. Asked Reveal A-Stockpile Size

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—A nuclear scientist has called upon President Eisenhower to reveal the size of this nation's atom bomb stockpile in the belief that the revleation "could be a potent force for peace."

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, formerly with the World War II atom bomb agency, Manhattan District, said the stockpile already "amounts to several tons of TNT for every inhabitant of our planet.'

HISTORY PER AGREEMENT

GERMAN AND American historians have been busily engaged in West Germany this summer getting their stories straightened on relations between the two countries in the modern era. Among other things, they have agreed that the U. S. must share "responsibility" for the rise of Hitlerism, that Americans had an economic stake in Allied victory before entering World War I, and that the U. S. Senate would have ratified the Versailles peace treaty if the late President Wilson had been a politician.

The conference, second of its type, was organized by the U. S. embassy at Bonn under auspices of the International Schoolbook Institute, to "clarify" historical interpretations for incorporation in textbooks of both countries. The purpose is to avoid what are termed extremist nationalistic views by subjecting young people of both nations to common interpretations of historical developments.

This approach may appear, at first glance, to be harmlessly constructive in theory, but many serious objections to it can be raised. Historical interpretation consists of a mosaic of many viewpoints and insights. A conference, however, is necessarily limited merely to those individuals taking part. Hence a certain amount of "horsetrading," if subconsciously engaged in, is unavoidable.

This is to say that the truth isn't always assaulted by means of a frontal attack, but is more generally apprehended with little design whatsoever. History per agreement can be little more than propaganda.

COMMERCIAL TV DEBUT

NOT SINCE the buzzbomb days of more than 10 years ago has Britain been hit by anything to approach the punch carried by commercial television. But instead of running for cover, staid Britons waited with fascinated apprehension for a sunburst of entertainment that is expected to put the government - operated British Broadcasting Company in the shade.

Not that commercial TV in Britain will ever be on the American scale. Here it's the advertisers through their representatives, the advertising agencies, that put on the sponsored programs. Britain, which has sought to give the people what's deemed to be good for them rather than what they want, refuses to go that far — initially at least. Commercials will merely be sold like newspaper advertisements to be read between programs.

Even so, commercial TV in Britain starts off with such American favorites as Roy Rogers, Hopalong Cassidy, Liberace, "I Love Lucy" and "Meet the Press." American observers in Britain say it will not be long until the new brand of TV runs the BBC off the air.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

William J. Baxter, the eminent economist, who earns a living advising businessmen how to make money, has been giving away free advice about the weather, lo, these many years, but of course we go on ignoring Baxter and similar advisers who admonish us that we live in very great peril because the weather is changing; that the world is growing warmer.

That vast changes are taking place and very rapidly seems obvious to the naked eye but what relationship these changes have to our flood damages, I do not know. Most of the data on the subject appears to be inconclusive to the layman who wonders what it is all about and generally blames his troubles on the atom bomb.

We can accept the facts that the weather is changing and that floods occur in shocking profusion. We see photographs of such horrors as the damage caused by floods to Winsted or Waterbury, Connecticut, but farmers each year are damaged by small floods in the upper reaches of watersheds. What Noah must have been thinking when he built the Ark, we, who lived through one of these floods, can now appreciate.

The Soil Conservation Service of the Department of Agriculture began studying this problem about three years ago. I personally witnessed what could happen when just such small floods occur; it means a rapid overflow of all basins, the carrying of rock and rubble down mountains to farms and roads; the destruction of unsurfaced country roads.

The Soil Conservation Service estimates that upstream flood damage cost an annual average of approximately $545,122,000. Two-thirds of the damage was to agriculture. It would seem as though the farmer always pays.

Public Law 56, 83rd Congress, provides for local, state and federal cooperation in the handling of flood problems. Had the State of Massachusetts and the localities of that state cooperated in accordance with this Law, it is likely that the frightful floods this summer, which did so much damage to cities in Connecticut, might not have occurred.

At any rate, their disastrous effects would have been lessened. The Farmington River, for instance, could have been harnessed, but it was not done because of local opposition and now the cost is enormous, even in lives. The politicians, as usual, passed the buck.

The problem grows more serious every year. We are increasingly upsetting the balance of nature and the waters that need to be held in check by the complex of big roots in forests, will not be checked by cultivated farm land or by graded roads. When the wilderness goes, provision must be made for other means to hold the waters in check.

What we saw during the 27 hours that the rain fell here in the Berkshires was that the ground did not absorb the water which everywhere lay inches above the soil within a few hours. At 11 p. m., on Thursday, August 18, before the flood was recognizable, for instance, my own driveway was covered with about 3 inches of water, despite the fact that I am at the top of a hill and the water ordinarily has a free run. The ground just could not hold more water. The next day, our mountain top was a pond.

MARRIAGE for THREE

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

SAYING nothing, Adam strode along ahead of Ann. What with the cars one had to walk single-file in such a street. He heard rather than saw the scuffle behind him, he turned and—

"Great dogs!" he said under his breath.

An Indian lay on the ground at Ann's feet. She was watching traffic for a chance to go around him.

"What happened?" Adam asked her.

"That—character!" she gasped. "He came lurching out of the cantina and fell right on me!"

"And you pushed him."

"Well, what else?"

Adam helped the man to his feet. He was undoubtedly drunk. He wore around his head the white band of a chief. Adam said a few words to the "character," then joined Ann, took her elbow in his hand and walked her along. "You can get into some big fights that way," he said sternly.

"Adam—" She drew a deep breath. "I am not going to let Indians grab me!"

"A white man coming out of a door could bump into you unexpectedly."

"He wasn't a white man. And I hate Indians!"

How different Pinky had been last week over that Indian baby!

It was small wonder that Adam preferred being with Pinky, and made opportunities to be with her. The chances came easily. Almost every evening, when he returned from the Project, Ann would tell him of somebody who wished to see him. Usually he'd say, "I'll look them up this evening."

Then he would look them up, taking Pinky with him to wait in the car while he talked to a rancher about building a guest house, or to an architect who thought that he and the builder could cooperate.

Pinky knew all about the chapel and lodge which had been Bishop Lamy's retreat "way back when." She'd stayed at the swank hotel there when she'd first come to New Mexico. Surely! She'd love to go there with Adam. Why not go the next afternoon? It wasn't far.

Next day he stopped at the hotel to say that a storm seemed to be brewing.

Pinky's eyelids flickered. "It's only in the mountains. You know how this country is. Clouds don't mean a thing."

But the clouds meant business that night. Adam and Pinky explored the tiny, jewel-like chapel, read the plaque on the wall of the icy entrance way, and came out to find clouds close against their mountain, wind howling about them, catching the words from their lips. Snow and sand stung their cheeks.

Adam could scarcely see to guide Pinky down the slope to the Lodge where he'd left the car. "We'll get dinner here, and let it slack up. Wheeee, what a blizzard!"

They went in through the wide porch, stepping across skis and poles and gear. The lamplit lobby was warm and friendly. A big fire roared on the hearth. A group of airmen from Kirtland had come up for some week-end skiing, and it was all very gay in the dining room around the fire afterwards.

Adam told some hilarious tales about the South Pacific; these were matched by what he called the fly-boys. One sergeant, a velvet-tongued rascal from Georgia, named Ike, who had a curving scar from one eye to the corner of his mouth, was doing his best to tell how he had been "wownded." He was constantly frustrated in this attempt by interruptions and protests from his friends.

"You ever let Dunning get started on the late war," one of the men told Pinky, "you're right here for all night?"

Pinky laughed and laughed.

At ten o'clock, Adam thought they ought to try to make it to Santa Fe.

The hostess shook her head. "You'd better stay right here for the night," she said. "It's only two miles to the Highway, but with this snow—"

Adam took a look outdoors, came back and phoned Ann. She assumed that he was up at Los Alamos, and agreed that he shouldn't risk the snowy road at night.

"I might get through . . ." he said.

"Don't try it."

"You'll be all right?"

"If the roof doesn't blow off."

He left the telephone and joined Pinky and a group about the great open fire.

* * *

The night of the storm marked a change for Ann. She sat alone in the little cinder-box house, close against the ground, safe from the screaming wind, warm enough physically, but cold to her bones' core with lonliness. And sullen with a resentment which she would not mark or define. On that night she became a little frightened at this sense of discontent which lately seemed always to be with her. She could perhaps have figured out where the trouble lay, what the trouble was—but it had been simpler to pretend there was no trouble, to go along, doing her daily tasks, not happy, but—

That night, when dark fell, she pulled the draperies across the windows and roamed about the small apartment worrying about Adam out there on that mountain drive. She'd driven it herself enough to know that there were places . . . Did they have landslides in these mountains? She guessed they could.

She jumped violently at the slamming of the service porch door; probably it was Adam coming in that way. She went swiftly through the kitchen to unlock its door and snap on the light.

But there was no one in the white-painted roomlike porch. The outer door was swinging with each vicious gust of wind. She went over and hooked it tightly shut, went back into the kitchen, locked that door and looked about with relief at the neatness of its shelves, the stove and refrigerator, and checkered red curtain. The warmth of the living room and its lamplight folded reassuringly about her; she was relieved to return to the couch, relieved to be alone.

She remembered the way she had stiffened at the noise of the door, and the thought of Adam's return. But now—

She hadn't really wanted Adam to come home. She looked steadily at the blue fire of the gas heater. "I can't bear to have him around me," she said aloud. "I can't bear to have him in the house!"

In the deep silence, her words echoed in her mind, repeated themselves.

But what a terrible thing for her to say! She didn't mean it.

Not really.

But, to tell the honest truth—as it was high time to do!—Ann was more content—she couldn't call it happier—when Adam was away from her, out of the house. Then the things she did, sewing, marketing, cooking, even her frequent excursions to the movies, were all a proper part of such wifely duties as he had allotted her; she could feel virtuous about the job she was doing for him as his wife.

But when Adam was at home . . .

She talked to him, she let him touch her — but then a sense of something's being wrong would threaten her with the knowledge that there was something wrong!

The knowledge had come to her full force out there on the porch. She was as shocked by the revelation as if she judged a strange woman who told of hating her husband's presence.

"I can't stand to have him around me!" Ann had said

If she really felt that way, she should pack up and leave! Leave at once. She had no right in Adam's home.

Shivering, Ann sat in the corner of the red couch. She should . . . But she couldn't leave Adam!

It would mean not seeing him again, not knowing what was happening to him, how far he had gone with his true skill in building, his clever ideas—never, never having his child. One with eyes the color of the sky, and long, straight limbs.

She was weeping at this loss when the phone rang, but her voice was quiet. "I'm glad you're all right, Adam," she said softly. She hung up and went to bed. But the bitter tears continued to flow. She loved Adam. She needed Adam. Her sobs rose and rose, until they filled the empty room, and even the storm could no longer be heard.

Millionaires, Treatment Of

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Practically everybody alive today sooner or later will meet a millionaire and feel worried about it

It was feared for a time that millionaires would die out in this civilization, that they would go the way of the dodo or the extinct passenger pigeon.

Happily, it hasn't worked out that way. The millionaire class has proved a hardy breed. If millionaires aren't quite multiplying like the rabbit, they are at least increasing faster than the whooping crane.

The average person, told he is going to meet a millionaire for the first time, finds his heart suddenly beating a bit faster.

"How shall I act?" he asks. 'What shall I say to him?"

Nervously, he thumbs through his wife's etiquette book. He finds no help there. Oddly, no etiquette writer ever thinks to include a chapter on "The Care and Proper Treatment of Millionaires."

This is a strange oversight indeed. The etiquette writers seem to have the idea that you should treat a millionaire just as you would any other social equal. They are on the right track here, but they don't go far enough. Millionaires are even more equal than your other social equals.

A helpful thing to remember is that, while you are uneasy at the prospect of meeting the millionaire, he may be even more uneasy over meeting you. A millionaire always has the uneasy feeling someone is trying to get at his money, and how does he know you aren't, too? As a matter of fact, he is probably right. Whoever met a millionaire without the wild secret hope he could help the fellow share the burden of his wealth?

Here are a few time-tested tips on how to get along with a millionaire:

1. When you first shake hands with him, avoid staring at his right hand hip pocket. It will only make him more nervous if your eyes go instantly to where you think he keeps his wallet. You'd be wrong anyway. All veteran millionaires carry their wallet in their inside coat pocket, where they can reach in and pat it gently from time to time.

2. If you are at a bar, insist on buying the first round of drinks yourself. This will throw him off guard, and he will begin to relax.

3. Talk about harmless topics like politics, sex and the weather. When a millionaire wants to talk about money, he likes to be the one who brings up the subject.

4. Don't make ridiculous remarks like, "Well, after all, money won't buy everything." The millionaire knows you aren't in a position to say whether this is really true. He is.

5. If you have an inside tip on a new stock or a horse race, pass it on to him at once. It will please him to know you are interested in seeing him get ahead.

6. Never ask him where is the safest place to keep money. He may be hiding his in the crotches of trees and become suspicious that you are trying to find out his secret.

7. If a millionaire tells you the only road to wealth is by hard work, don't laugh out loud—even though you know he inherited his own riches. Look impresed. He may be right. If you don't think inheriting money is hard work, just sit down right now and try to inherit some yourself.

8. It is unwise to ask him how many millions he really has. If he only has one, it will embarrass him. If he has more than one, he won't tell you anyway.

9. Should you number several millionaires among your acquaintanceship, avoid mentioning the fact. Every millionaire likes to feel he is the only millionaire in your life.

10. Many people in the presence of a millionaire feel an overwhelming urge to praise the income tax. Fight down this temptation or you'll find yourself all alone talking to yourself.

There is one other rule worth remembering: People who really have money usually let it talk for them. If a guy at your dinner table brags he's a millionaire, be sure to count the spoons before he leaves.

HISTORY PER AGREEMENT

GERMAN AND American historians have been busily engaged in West Germany this summer getting their stories straightened on relations between the two countries in the modern era. Among other things, they have agreed that the U. S. must share "responsibility" for the rise of Hitlerism, that Americans had an economic stake in Allied victory before entering World War I, and that the U. S. Senate would have ratified the Versailles peace treaty if the late President Wilson had been a politician.

The conference, second of its type, was organized by the U. S. embassy at Bonn under auspices of the International Schoolbook Institute, to "clarify" historical interpretations for incorporation in textbooks of both countries. The purpose is to avoid what are termed extremist nationalistic views by subjecting young people of both nations to common interpretations of historical developments.

This approach may appear, at first glance, to be harmlessly constructive in theory, but many serious objections to it can be raised. Historical interpretation consists of a mosaic of many viewpoints and insights. A conference, however, is necessarily limited merely to those individuals taking part. Hence a certain amount of "horsetrading," if subconsciously engaged in, is unavoidable.

This is to say that the truth isn't always assaulted by means of a frontal attack, but is more generally apprehended with little design whatsoever. History per agreement can be little more than propaganda.

COMMERCIAL TV DEBUT

NOT SINCE the buzzbomb days of more than 10 years ago has Britain been hit by anything to approach the punch carried by commercial television. But instead of running for cover, staid Britons waited with fascinated apprehension for a sunburst of entertainment that is expected to put the government - operated British Broadcasting Company in the shade.

Not that commercial TV in Britain will ever be on the American scale. Here it's the advertisers through their representatives, the advertising agencies, that put on the sponsored programs. Britain, which has sought to give the people what's deemed to be good for them rather than what they want, refuses to go that far — initially at least. Commercials will merely be sold like newspaper advertisements to be read between programs.

Even so, commercial TV in Britain starts off with such American favorites as Roy Rogers, Hopalong Cassidy, Liberace, "I Love Lucy" and "Meet the Press." American observers in Britain say it will not be long until the new brand of TV runs the BBC off the air.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

William J. Baxter, the eminent economist, who earns a living advising businessmen how to make money, has been giving away free advice about the weather, lo, these many years, but of course we go on ignoring Baxter and similar advisers who admonish us that we live in very great peril because the weather is changing; that the world is growing warmer.

That vast changes are taking place and very rapidly seems obvious to the naked eye but what relationship these changes have to our flood damages, I do not know. Most of the data on the subject appears to be inconclusive to the layman who wonders what it is all about and generally blames his troubles on the atom bomb.

We can accept the facts that the weather is changing and that floods occur in shocking profusion. We see photographs of such horrors as the damage caused by floods to Winsted or Waterbury, Connecticut, but farmers each year are damaged by small floods in the upper reaches of watersheds. What Noah must have been thinking when he built the Ark, we, who lived through one of these floods, can now appreciate.

The Soil Conservation Service of the Department of Agriculture began studying this problem about three years ago. I personally witnessed what could happen when just such small floods occur; it means a rapid overflow of all basins, the carrying of rock and rubble down mountains to farms and roads; the destruction of unsurfaced country roads.

The Soil Conservation Service estimates that upstream flood damage cost an annual average of approximately $545,122,000. Two-thirds of the damage was to agriculture. It would seem as though the farmer always pays.

Public Law 56, 83rd Congress, provides for local, state and federal cooperation in the handling of flood problems. Had the State of Massachusetts and the localities of that state cooperated in accordance with this Law, it is likely that the frightful floods this summer, which did so much damage to cities in Connecticut, might not have occurred.

At any rate, their disastrous effects would have been lessened. The Farmington River, for instance, could have been harnessed, but it was not done because of local opposition and now the cost is enormous, even in lives. The politicians, as usual, passed the buck.

The problem grows more serious every year. We are increasingly upsetting the balance of nature and the waters that need to be held in check by the complex of big roots in forests, will not be checked by cultivated farm land or by graded roads. When the wilderness goes, provision must be made for other means to hold the waters in check.

What we saw during the 27 hours that the rain fell here in the Berkshires was that the ground did not absorb the water which everywhere lay inches above the soil within a few hours. At 11 p. m., on Thursday, August 18, before the flood was recognizable, for instance, my own driveway was covered with about 3 inches of water, despite the fact that I am at the top of a hill and the water ordinarily has a free run. The ground just could not hold more water. The next day, our mountain top was a pond.

MARRIAGE for THREE

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

SAYING nothing, Adam strode along ahead of Ann. What with the cars one had to walk single-file in such a street. He heard rather than saw the scuffle behind him, he turned and—

"Great dogs!" he said under his breath.

An Indian lay on the ground at Ann's feet. She was watching traffic for a chance to go around him.

"What happened?" Adam asked her.

"That—character!" she gasped. "He came lurching out of the cantina and fell right on me!"

"And you pushed him."

"Well, what else?"

Adam helped the man to his feet. He was undoubtedly drunk. He wore around his head the white band of a chief. Adam said a few words to the "character," then joined Ann, took her elbow in his hand and walked her along. "You can get into some big fights that way," he said sternly.

"Adam—" She drew a deep breath. "I am not going to let Indians grab me!"

"A white man coming out of a door could bump into you unexpectedly."

"He wasn't a white man. And I hate Indians!"

How different Pinky had been last week over that Indian baby!

It was small wonder that Adam preferred being with Pinky, and made opportunities to be with her. The chances came easily. Almost every evening, when he returned from the Project, Ann would tell him of somebody who wished to see him. Usually he'd say, "I'll look them up this evening."

Then he would look them up, taking Pinky with him to wait in the car while he talked to a rancher about building a guest house, or to an architect who thought that he and the builder could cooperate.

Pinky knew all about the chapel and lodge which had been Bishop Lamy's retreat "way back when." She'd stayed at the swank hotel there when she'd first come to New Mexico. Surely! She'd love to go there with Adam. Why not go the next afternoon? It wasn't far.

Next day he stopped at the hotel to say that a storm seemed to be brewing.

Pinky's eyelids flickered. "It's only in the mountains. You know how this country is. Clouds don't mean a thing."

But the clouds meant business that night. Adam and Pinky explored the tiny, jewel-like chapel, read the plaque on the wall of the icy entrance way, and came out to find clouds close against their mountain, wind howling about them, catching the words from their lips. Snow and sand stung their cheeks.

Adam could scarcely see to guide Pinky down the slope to the Lodge where he'd left the car. "We'll get dinner here, and let it slack up. Wheeee, what a blizzard!"

They went in through the wide porch, stepping across skis and poles and gear. The lamplit lobby was warm and friendly. A big fire roared on the hearth. A group of airmen from Kirtland had come up for some week-end skiing, and it was all very gay in the dining room around the fire afterwards.

5. If you have an inside tip on a new stock or a horse race, pass it on to him at once. It will please him to know you are interested in seeing him get ahead.

6. Never ask him where is the safest place to keep money. He may be hiding his in the crotches of trees and become suspicious that you are trying to find out his secret.

7. If a millionaire tells you the only road to wealth is by hard work, don't laugh out loud—even though you know he inherited his own riches. Look impresed. He may be right. If you don't think inheriting money is hard work, just sit down right now and try to inherit some yourself.

8. It is unwise to ask him how many millions he really has. If he only has one, it will embarrass him. If he has more than one, he won't tell you anyway.

9. Should you number several millionaires among your acquaintanceship, avoid mentioning the fact. Every millionaire likes to feel he is the only millionaire in your life.

10. Many people in the presence of a millionaire feel an overwhelming urge to praise the income tax. Fight down this temptation or you'll find yourself all alone talking to yourself.

There is one other rule worth remembering: People who really have money usually let it talk for them. If a guy at your dinner table brags he's a millionaire, be sure to count the spoons before he leaves.

Circleville Art League Has Lecture By Mrs. Gene Kuhns

Pumpkin Show Exhibit Planned

Mrs. Gene Kuhns of Chillicothe gave a demonstration of oil techniques used in portrait painting during a meeting of the Circleville Art League, held in the studio at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orin Clarke Stout of Stoutsville.

Mrs. Kuhn showed how the head of the portrait should be blacked in, and stressed the importance of the foundation. The speaker demonstrated her method of mixing paint as she goes along, rather than mixing it before starting to work.

Instead of working all over the canvas, Mrs. Kuhns started at the top and worked down. She stated that she is very conscious of the mood of her subject, and can only work if the model is fresh. She says "When the model is tired, I am tired".

Mrs. Kuhns has worked under Harry L. Hickman and Jean Johnston, an oil portrait teacher, both of the Art Institute of Pittsburgh. She also studied design at the Columbus Art School, took Famon's Artists' Course, and studied under Joseph Canzannie, dean of the Columbus school.

The speaker presented a one-man show at the Southern Hotel in Columbus this Spring. She also is founder and president of the Chillicothe Art League.

Mrs. Kuhns announced an exhibit by the Chillicothe Art League, to be held Oct. 1 and 2 in the West Fifth Street school of that city. The event is to be open free to the public. The sixty pictures to be on display will be judged by Emerson Burkhart.

A trophy won for the best picture of the Spring showing of the group, held by H. E. Montelius of Circleville, also will be on display. The Ohio Folklore Society will take part in the exhibit at 2 p. m. on the Saturday of the show.

Plans for the annual showing of the Circleville Art League at the Pumpkin Show were made during a business session of the meeting.

Mrs. Burnell Wiggins was named chairman of the exhibit, with Mrs. William Collins as assistant. Judging of the work on display is to be done by a committee of three citizens from the Circleville community.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening by Mrs. H. E. Montelius, assisted by Miss Ruth Montelius.

Truman Memoirs Tell Plan To Prevent World War 3

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry S. Truman says he believes his administration paved the way for preventing a third world war for "as far ahead as man can see."

It did so, the former President contends, by making sure of this country's military strength, and by dealing with Soviet Russia on a "give-and-take" basis.

Truman leaves for conjecture the exact language he used in a face-to-face dressing down he gave Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov at the White House on April 23, 1945, for failure to carry out Russia's Yalta agreements on Poland.

But he says it was so sharp that Molotov was stung to protest "I have never been talked to like that in my life." Truman recalls he retorted: "Carry out your agreements and you won't get talked to like that."

Jonathan Daniels, a one-time member of Truman's staff, once quoted one of those present as saying Truman used "blunt language unadorned by the polite verbiage of diplomacy" and "the natural language of a direct politician to men he recognized as politicians, too."

The story of the now famous White House session is told in Life magazine's current issue in the first five installments of the "Truman Memoirs." The New York Times and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch are serializing them, too. The instalments make up the first volume, which will be brought out in book form in November by Doubleday & Co.

Truman is reportedly getting $600,000 for this and a second volume, to be published early next year.

Truman, writing of his first 18 days in the presidency, attributes his 1945 appointment of James F. Byrnes as secretary of state in part to a desire to make up to Byrnes for his failure to get the Democratic vice presidential nomination in 1944.

Byrnes, according to Truman, was "deeply disappointed and hurt" when Truman was picked instead. He had "asked me to nominate him and give him my support," the ex-President adds. "But Roosevelt and the convention ruled otherwise."

Byrnes quit the Cabinet in 1947. Later a Truman-Byrnes feud flared onto the front pages and Byrnes supported Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower for the presidency in 1952.

Truman coupled praise of the late GOP Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio as a "highly ethical, straightforward and honorable man" with a description of Taft as "a violent partisan" with a "sense of dynasty."

"Like John Quincy Adams and Benjamin Franklin, he wanted to keep the presidency in the family," the Missourian writes.

Truman tells of getting his "first bit of information" about the development of the atomic bomb after he became president. He recalls fleet Adm. William D. Leahy, his chief of staff, as saying in his "sturdy, salty" manner:

"That the biggest fool thing we have ever done. The bomb will never go off, and I speak as an expert on explosives."

Adm. Leahy's version of the conversation differs from Truman's. He said today he told the President he knew about other explosives, but "I did not know about that (atomic) explosive."

Bender Convinced Ike Will Run, Win

DAYTON (AP) — Sen. George H. Bender (R-Ohio) says he thinks President Eisenhower will seek re-election, and "if he does, he'll win by a landslide."

Bender, speaking last night before a club of GOP women, decried those who say the GOP can't win without Eisenhower. He named Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio), Secretary of the Treasury George H. Humphrey, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif) and California Gov. Goodwin J. Knight as potential "winners."

Truman Memoirs Tell Plan To Prevent World War 3

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry S. Truman says he believes his administration paved the way for preventing a third world war for "as far ahead as man can see."

It did so, the former President contends, by making sure of this country's military strength, and by dealing with Soviet Russia on a "give-and-take" basis.

Truman leaves for conjecture the exact language he used in a face-to-face dressing down he gave Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov at the White House on April 23, 1945, for failure to carry out Russia's Yalta agreements on Poland.

But he says it was so sharp that Molotov was stung to protest "I have never been talked to like that in my life." Truman recalls he retorted: "Carry out your agreements and you won't get talked to like that."

Jonathan Daniels, a one-time member of Truman's staff, once quoted one of those present as saying Truman used "blunt language unadorned by the polite verbiage of diplomacy" and "the natural language of a direct politician to men he recognized as politicians, too."

The story of the now famous White House session is told in Life magazine's current issue in the first five installments of the "Truman Memoirs." The New York Times and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch are serializing them, too. The instalments make up the first volume, which will be brought out in book form in November by Doubleday & Co.

Truman is reportedly getting $600,000 for this and a second volume, to be published early next year.

Truman, writing of his first 18 days in the presidency, attributes his 1945 appointment of James F. Byrnes as secretary of state in part to a desire to make up to Byrnes for his failure to get the Democratic vice presidential nomination in 1944.

Byrnes, according to Truman, was "deeply disappointed and hurt" when Truman was picked instead. He had "asked me to nominate him and give him my support," the ex-President adds. "But Roosevelt and the convention ruled otherwise."

Byrnes quit the Cabinet in 1947. Later a Truman-Byrnes feud flared onto the front pages and Byrnes supported Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower for the presidency in 1952.

Truman coupled praise of the late GOP Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio as a "highly ethical, straightforward and honorable man" with a description of Taft as "a violent partisan" with a "sense of dynasty."

"Like John Quincy Adams and Benjamin Franklin, he wanted to keep the presidency in the family," the Missourian writes.

Truman tells of getting his "first bit of information" about the development of the atomic bomb after he became president. He recalls fleet Adm. William D. Leahy, his chief of staff, as saying in his "sturdy, salty" manner:

"That the biggest fool thing we have ever done. The bomb will never go off, and I speak as an expert on explosives."

Adm. Leahy's version of the conversation differs from Truman's. He said today he told the President he knew about other explosives, but "I did not know about that (atomic) explosive."

Bender Convinced Ike Will Run, Win

DAYTON (AP) — Sen. George H. Bender (R-Ohio) says he thinks President Eisenhower will seek re-election, and "if he does, he'll win by a landslide."

Bender, speaking last night before a club of GOP women, decried those who say the GOP can't win without Eisenhower. He named Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio), Secretary of the Treasury George H. Humphrey, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif) and California Gov. Goodwin J. Knight as potential "winners."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The big brains in politics have a worrisome problem coming up because of television. Its use is going to turn the 1956 presidential campaign into one of the most widely viewed dramas ever played on the American scene.

The problem is this:

1. What is the best way to present the candidate on the TV screens in millions of homes in a folksy, seemingly unrehearsed manner?

2. And, how can these appearances be carefully staged and rehearsed to capture all the drama of the moment without the production appearing too slick and contrived?

It's a real problem. A candidate in these days must be a better-than-fair sort of actor. The most popular political productions seem to be those with the intimate, homespun atmosphere overlaid with by such obvious sincerity that no one can overlook it or fail to be impressed.

Even if a candidate is naturally homespun and sincere, it doesn't always register before a camera. And to make it register requires some acting ability.

The truth is that presidential candidates — and candidates for Congress too—must have "television appeal" in the new scheme of things. This means developing a knack for acting before a camera.

During the 1952 campaign, there was a good deal of talk that "the hucksters" had begun to take over in selling a political candidate to the people. The Democrats particularly leveled the charge against the Eisenhower campaign.

But there are tricks to every trade and the politicians of both parties have had to turn to the merchandising experts for advice and direction in putting their best TV foot forward.

The agency which represented the Republicans in 1952 was Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne of New York. The Democrats depended on the Joseph Katz Agency of Baltimore. Both parties again will have merchandising experts behind the scenes in the next campaign. It appears they have come to the political platform to stay.

It might be argued with some validity that television in 1956 will have twice the impact in politics that it had in 1952 because more than double the number of voters will be watching TV screens.

No one yet knows just how great an impact TV has in the success or failure of a political candidate. But neither party can take chances by not putting its bes TV foot forward.

Both President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon have developed a relaxed, informal manner before the television cameras. And Adlai Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic nominee, while not so folksy as Eisenhower and Nixon, is an able TV performer.

Some wags are suggesting that the 1956 campaign should be reported by the drama critics rather than political reporters. And it could be.

Because astronomers know quite accurately how the earth, sun and moon are moving, they can figure out long in advance when the three bodies will be in such a position as to cause an eclipse.

WITH SCHOOLS OPEN, Circleville Police Chief Elmer Merriman warns motorists to be extra careful in school zones. At the same time, Chief Merriman says that adults should share the responsibility by teaching their children to be aware of automobile traffic. He implores parents and motorists, who are sometimes one and the same, to help Circleville keep its good record on school zone accidents.

Marion Marlowe's Return To Hollywood Is Different

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Tall, shapely Marion Marlowe of St. Louis has returned to Hollywood under different circumstances from her last visit.

Today she is headlining at a big new night spot, has signed for a leading role in a movie and is negotiating for more. When she was last here, she was a carhop at a drive-in restaurant.

Moral: It pays to get fired.

As any TV fan can tell you, Marion was one of the so-called Arthur Godfrey Friends. She got the ax.

It turned out to be a disguised blessing. The soprano was immediately signed for several appearances on the Ed Sullivan Show. She will be featured prominently in "The Ed Sullivan Story," which Warners is going to film.

She also was hooked up to high-salaried dates at such spots as the Chez Paree in Chicago, Dunes in Las Vegas and the new Beverly Hilton here. She was lunching on the balcony of her swank seventh-floor suite at the Hilton as she reminisced about her previous assault in Hollywood.

"It was back in 1947 or so," she remarked. "I had just graduated from high school in St. Louis. I heard Monogram was making a picture based on the life of Tchaikovsky. They were looking for a girl who was tall, brunette and could sing. I qualified for all three.

"A friend of mine sent my picture. The studio wrote back for me to come to Hollywood—at my own expense, of course.

"So I came out. I sat around for five months doing nothing. They finally cast the part with a short blonde and dubbed in the songs. It figures."

But Marion didn't return in defeat to St. Louis. She stayed in Hollywood, living at the Studio Club and hustling hamburgers at a drive-in.

Finally she snapped at the chance to go to London in a show called "Sauce Tartere."

Marion came back to this country, got a big buildup, then the gate from Godfrey. However, she's enjoying her new-found freedom, both financially and professionally.

It is fortunate that we are such a rich nation and that somehow we can pay for such enormous damages, but it would make more sense to spend our money scientifically and sensibily on conservation measures in advance of disaster.

We seem to have plenty of money to spend in India and Pakistan and such places, but when it comes to doing any kind of constructive work within the United States, we are niggardly, and we grow increasingly niggardly. Had it not been so, the floods of the Farmington and Naugatuck Rivers might not have taken place.

At any rate, that is what the experts say and who can tell that they are wrong after what we have witnessed. We do know that because my neighbors here in Otis used their heads and the Otis Dam held, greater and more frightful loss of life did not occur. Next time, that dam, unsupported by other conservation work, may not hold and the entire Farmington Valley, a rich and beautiful area, might become a desert.

Sergeants Land 15-Foot Shark

HONOLULU (AP) — Marine Sgt. Richard C. Lawrence and Air Force Sgt. Charles Hoke, fishing from the Ft. Weaver dock, Wednesday landed a 15-foot shark weighing 1,800 pounds. The battle lasted three hours.

The sergeants said they used a two-foot hammerhead shark as bait.

Carrier Flying Confederate Flag

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) —The Stars and Bars waved in the blue off this port Wednesday as a ceremony was held aboard the carrier Ticonderoga honoring Robert E. Lee and the new 30-cent Lee stamp.

It marked the first time the Confederate flag has flown from an American warship.

Marion Marlowe's Return To Hollywood Is Different

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Tall, shapely Marion Marlowe of St. Louis has returned to Hollywood under different circumstances from her last visit.

Today she is headlining at a big new night spot, has signed for a leading role in a movie and is negotiating for more. When she was last here, she was a carhop at a drive-in restaurant.

Moral: It pays to get fired.

As any TV fan can tell you, Marion was one of the so-called Arthur Godfrey Friends. She got the ax.

It turned out to be a disguised blessing. The soprano was immediately signed for several appearances on the Ed Sullivan Show. She will be featured prominently in "The Ed Sullivan Story," which Warners is going to film.

She also was hooked up to high-salaried dates at such spots as the Chez Paree in Chicago, Dunes in Las Vegas and the new Beverly Hilton here. She was lunching on the balcony of her swank seventh-floor suite at the Hilton as she reminisced about her previous assault in Hollywood.

"It was back in 1947 or so," she remarked. "I had just graduated from high school in St. Louis. I heard Monogram was making a picture based on the life of Tchaikovsky. They were looking for a girl who was tall, brunette and could sing. I qualified for all three.

"A friend of mine sent my picture. The studio wrote back for me to come to Hollywood—at my own expense, of course.

"So I came out. I sat around for five months doing nothing. They finally cast the part with a short blonde and dubbed in the songs. It figures."

But Marion didn't return in defeat to St. Louis. She stayed in Hollywood, living at the Studio Club and hustling hamburgers at a drive-in.

Finally she snapped at the chance to go to London in a show called "Sauce Tartere."

Marion came back to this country, got a big buildup, then the gate from Godfrey. However, she's enjoying her new-found freedom, both financially and professionally.

It is fortunate that we are such a rich nation and that somehow we can pay for such enormous damages, but it would make more sense to spend our money scientifically and sensibily on conservation measures in advance of disaster.

We seem to have plenty of money to spend in India and Pakistan and such places, but when it comes to doing any kind of constructive work within the United States, we are niggardly, and we grow increasingly niggardly. Had it not been so, the floods of the Farmington and Naugatuck Rivers might not have taken place.

At any rate, that is what the experts say and who can tell that they are wrong after what we have witnessed. We do know that because my neighbors here in Otis used their heads and the Otis Dam held, greater and more frightful loss of life did not occur. Next time, that dam, unsupported by other conservation work, may not hold and the entire Farmington Valley, a rich and beautiful area, might become a desert.

Sergeants Land 15-Foot Shark

HONOLULU (AP) — Marine Sgt. Richard C. Lawrence and Air Force Sgt. Charles Hoke, fishing from the Ft. Weaver dock, Wednesday landed a 15-foot shark weighing 1,800 pounds. The battle lasted three hours.

The sergeants said they used a two-foot hammerhead shark as bait.

Carrier Flying Confederate Flag

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) —The Stars and Bars waved in the blue off this port Wednesday as a ceremony was held aboard the carrier Ticonderoga honoring Robert E. Lee and the new 30-cent Lee stamp.

It marked the first time the Confederate flag has flown from an American warship.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Looking back five years, my question is—how should I have dealt with a 12-year-old stepdaughter? She is 17 now, hostile and disloyal to me.

Before I entered her life, Ann had been watched over by 10 or 12 babysitters. And she had been cook and housekeeper for her father and younger brother Joey, who is six years her junior—and 11 now. Suddenly here I came, full of enthusiasm and new ideas, in the role of mother and family economist.

If I bought peanut butter, she wanted strawberry jam. Or if I planned a chicken dinner, she preferred beans and cornbread. Her food preferences have posed a problem, as my working husband loves a good substantial meal of, say, cabbage and cottage ham, or pot roast; or just plain old beef hash. And he is so easy to please that many times tears of gratitude swell up in my eyes, as he exuberantly eats the meals I fix—with never a word of criticism.

At 14, Ann was going with a married man; and at 15 she was pregnant. I've heard many reasons why girls go wrong — because they've felt unloved; or for lack of religious training, etc.

Girl Influences Brother

My stepson Joey has been in a church school since the first grade —due to my stubborn will to keep him in this particular school. Ann tries to persuade him, time and again, to go to the public school she attended; and believe me, he loves his sister far better than he could ever love me. In his eyes she can do no wrong. So how can I put her on the right path, so that her influence won't harm Joey?

When I help with his lessons, or read from the Bible, Ann contradicts my religious teachings. Also, she interjects a knowing look or word if I can't give Joey a dollar every time some playmate gets an allowance. Nobody could live on the diet Ann prefers; nor thrive spiritually on her line of thought. I am stumped as to how to help; and I have two children by this marriage I can't just pick up and go. These children need their father too. Please advise me how to adjust.

I.B.

DEAR I. B.: What children respond to in adults is large-minded but positive strength of character, expressed in dynamic certitude in handling the young. And what they despise and savagely abuse is a timid, groping, uncertain or wistfully sentimental policy on the part of parents—or guardian, or whoever has nominal authority over them.

When you came upon the scene, it appears that you fell short of confident adult performance in dealing with Ann. She seems to have signified aggressively that she felt she was a power to be reckoned with—and evidently you took her at face value and tried to woo her. Actually you should have treated her, kindly but decisively, as a youngster who had been doing her best in a job unsuited to her years, who was now being relieved by you of policy-making.

Suiting your actions to your words, you should have indicated, firmly and consistently—and matter of factly, without apology—that you knew what you were doing. And that you would plan menus, etc., to provide the best nutriment for the money, letting your husband's food-preferences be your guide, if any favorites were to be played. Occasionally Ann's tastes might have been honored, but as a spontaneous friendly gesture on your part—not as a bargaining or conciliatory or groveling concession.

Self-Esteem Marks Leader

In all aspects of mothering the household—in supervising Joey's education, determining his cash allowance, administering religious teaching, etc. — you should be a law into yourself, in so far as Ann's sniping is concerned. You should be fair-minded, self-respecting and steady — showing forth a calm belief in your wisdom to govern.

Taking into account your heart-wrung efforts to win Ann's devotion, she can't possibly hold you to blame for her adolescent wrong-doing. It seems she is willfully "set" on being a problem to you—which means, in a sense, that she is cutting her own throat, under the impression that she is thereby spiting you.

In the city through which you write, there is a Family Service to guide parents in solving child-management problems. Go there for first-hand help in getting your bearings and regaining self-confidence.

American Indian Boy Assisted By Pickaway Plains DAR Unit

Through the efforts of the Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, an American Indian boy is getting valuable training at a school in Oklahoma.

The story was disclosed this week in connection with the nationwide observance of Constitution Week, annual tribute to America's basic law. The local chapter of the DAR, urging all possible participation, suggested that district residents and business establishments display flags and otherwise share in the patriotic theme.

A spokesman for the DAR's Pickaway Plains Chapter told how the district branch has adopted a Navajo Indian boy who is attending the Chilocco Indian Agricultural School in Oklahoma.

Indian boys who attend the school are from Navajo reservations in Arizona and New Mexico.

* * *

MOST OF the students, upon their arrival, can neither read nor write. Few, at the beginning of their training, can speak English.

They are given a five-year educational course, and those found capable are then entered in high school. The federal government furnishes room, board, books and medical expenses for the student. He must have, or be given, his own clothing, however. Nearly all of the boys come from very poor homes and thus someone must sponsor their education until they are able to earn their own way.

The Pickaway Plains Chapter of the DAR sponsors 19-year old Howard Begay, and is sending him clothing, both new and used articles in good condition. The chapter also plans to send him gifts at Christmas and on his birthday.

Mrs. Emerson Downing of E. Main St. is chairman of the American Indian Committee of the local chapter.

The local chapter likewise contributes cash and beads from old necklaces, purses and so forth to the Bacone College at Bacone, Okla. The beads are used by the Indians to turn out attractive craft work.

Any clothing sent by the various DAR chapters — when not needed by the students—is turned over to an Indian girls school, where the girls learn to sew and remodel the garments.

Brown County Autopsy Ordered

GEORGETOWN (AP) — Brown County officials planned today to begin a new investigation into the Labor Day death of Joseph Perraut, 25.

At the time Perraut died, authorities were informed he was killed in an accidental fall from a barn loft at his farm.

Yesterday, however, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Perraut filed an affidavit declaring they had reason to believe their son died of "unnatural or illegal" causes.

Common Pleas Judge John Houston issued a request that Perraut's body he exhumed from its grave in Mason County, Kentucky, and returned here for an autopsy.

Eagles Lodge OKs Idle Pay Issue

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Fraternal Order of Eagles in Ohio supports a proposal of the Ohio CIO Council to increase jobless benefits, the Committee to Protect Standards of Living says.

The committee was formed last week to support the move for higher unemployment compensation. It said the Ohio Eagles adopted a resolution at Akron last week "heartily approving" the CIO proposal. The proposal will be on the Nov. 8 election ballot.

1,500 Walk Out At Atomic Plant

Tribunal Grants Mercy To Slayer

DAYTON (AP)—A three-judge jury yesterday found Dayton cabinet maker Hathel Creech guilty of slaying his waitress wife, Delores, 27, while she worked at a downtown restaurant last July 9.

The 37-year-old Creech was extended mercy by the judges, making life imprisonment mandatory on the first degree murder charge. Creech said he shot his wife in anger when she refused to return to him. Hehad previously served nine months of a 1-20 year sentence at Mansfield Reformatory for first degree manslaughter.

Cleveland's One-Hoss Shay Falls Apart, Is Junk Now

THE ASSOCIATED Press

Cleveland's wonderful one-hoss Shay, falling apart all at once, was piled on the American League junk heap today with only a miracle capable of pushing it any farther along the pennant road.

And it will take a large, economy-size miracle to bar the New York Yankees, more than ever the old pros, from their sixth championship in seven years. With four games remaining, starting with a twin bill at Boston Friday, the Yanks need to win but one more to clinch it.

They can drop all four and still win it should the Indians, now four games back on the "lost" side, drop even one of their three remaining games.

The once-frantic pennant scramble practically came to a close Wednesday night as New York pounded Washington 7-3 and the Tribe took a 7-2 lashing from the Chicago White Sox — who became official also-rans 24 hours earlier.

At worst, New York can tie for the flag. They have won eight straight — their longest streak this season. Cleveland, two games ahead only a week ago, has lost five of six.

The 3½-game edge New York now holds is the biggest bulge any leader has had since July 15, when the Yanks led by four.

The Indians got just five safe blows off Jack Harshman last night. The Sox, meanwhile, shelled Bob Lemon, who lost his second straight.

Manager Al Lopez has started his aces — Lemon, Early Wynn and Mike Garcia — in each of the last six games and they've crumpled along with the hitters.

An error by rookie shortstop Bill Harrell, injected by Lopez in a try for more hits, opened the way to a five-run eighth inning for the White Sox as Lemon lost his 10th. He's won 18.

New York packaged the Nats in three innings, tagging Chuck Stobbs for six hits — four of them for extra bases — and a 4-0 lead. Billy Martin iced it with an inside-the-park homer with two on off rookie Ted Abernathy in the fifth.

Bob Turley won his 17th, but walked eight and Rip Coleman and Bob Grim mopped up after Washington scored three in the seventh.

In the other AL games, Baltimore left the cellar behind by beating Boston 8-7 in 13 innings, and Detroit clubbed Kansas City 10-1 as Ray Boone and Harvey Kuenn homered in an eight-run first.

The New York Giants, world champs a year ago, clinched third in the National League standings by peppering Pittsburgh for the second straight day in a doubleheader 7-2 and 7-3. Ray Monzant gave three hits in the nightcap and Don Liddle allowed only four in the first game.

American Indian Boy Assisted By Pickaway Plains DAR Unit

Through the efforts of the Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, an American Indian boy is getting valuable training at a school in Oklahoma.

The story was disclosed this week in connection with the nationwide observance of Constitution Week, annual tribute to America's basic law. The local chapter of the DAR, urging all possible participation, suggested that district residents and business establishments display flags and otherwise share in the patriotic theme.

A spokesman for the DAR's Pickaway Plains Chapter told how the district branch has adopted a Navajo Indian boy who is attending the Chilocco Indian Agricultural School in Oklahoma.

Indian boys who attend the school are from Navajo reservations in Arizona and New Mexico.

* * *

MOST OF the students, upon their arrival, can neither read nor write. Few, at the beginning of their training, can speak English.

They are given a five-year educational course, and those found capable are then entered in high school. The federal government furnishes room, board, books and medical expenses for the student. He must have, or be given, his own clothing, however. Nearly all of the boys come from very poor homes and thus someone must sponsor their education until they are able to earn their own way.

The Pickaway Plains Chapter of the DAR sponsors 19-year old Howard Begay, and is sending him clothing, both new and used articles in good condition. The chapter also plans to send him gifts at Christmas and on his birthday.

Mrs. Emerson Downing of E. Main St. is chairman of the American Indian Committee of the local chapter.

The local chapter likewise contributes cash and beads from old necklaces, purses and so forth to the Bacone College at Bacone, Okla. The beads are used by the Indians to turn out attractive craft work.

Any clothing sent by the various DAR chapters — when not needed by the students—is turned over to an Indian girls school, where the girls learn to sew and remodel the garments.

Brown County Autopsy Ordered

GEORGETOWN (AP) — Brown County officials planned today to begin a new investigation into the Labor Day death of Joseph Perraut, 25.

At the time Perraut died, authorities were informed he was killed in an accidental fall from a barn loft at his farm.

Yesterday, however, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Perraut filed an affidavit declaring they had reason to believe their son died of "unnatural or illegal" causes.

Common Pleas Judge John Houston issued a request that Perraut's body he exhumed from its grave in Mason County, Kentucky, and returned here for an autopsy.

Eagles Lodge OKs Idle Pay Issue

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Fraternal Order of Eagles in Ohio supports a proposal of the Ohio CIO Council to increase jobless benefits, the Committee to Protect Standards of Living says.

The committee was formed last week to support the move for higher unemployment compensation. It said the Ohio Eagles adopted a resolution at Akron last week "heartily approving" the CIO proposal. The proposal will be on the Nov. 8 election ballot.

1,500 Walk Out At Atomic Plant

WAVERLY (AP)—A strike of about 1,500 AFL craftsman was called at the Atomic Energy Commission plant at nearby Piketon yesterday. The plant has about 4,200 craftsman.

A spokesman for the plant's major contractor, Peter Kiewit Sons Co., said the men walked off their jobs following a dispute between AFL Technical Engineers, Local 159, and the S. T. Keyon Engineering Co., Portsmouth.

Tribunal Grants Mercy To Slayer

DAYTON (AP)—A three-judge jury yesterday found Dayton cabinet maker Hathel Creech guilty of slaying his waitress wife, Delores, 27, while she worked at a downtown restaurant last July 9.

The 37-year-old Creech was extended mercy by the judges, making life imprisonment mandatory on the first degree murder charge. Creech said he shot his wife in anger when she refused to return to him. Hehad previously served nine months of a 1-20 year sentence at Mansfield Reformatory for first degree manslaughter.

Cleveland's One-Hoss Shay Falls Apart, Is Junk Now

THE ASSOCIATED Press

Cleveland's wonderful one-hoss Shay, falling apart all at once, was piled on the American League junk heap today with only a miracle capable of pushing it any farther along the pennant road.

And it will take a large, economy-size miracle to bar the New York Yankees, more than ever the old pros, from their sixth championship in seven years. With four games remaining, starting with a twin bill at Boston Friday, the Yanks need to win but one more to clinch it.

They can drop all four and still win it should the Indians, now four games back on the "lost" side, drop even one of their three remaining games.

The once-frantic pennant scramble practically came to a close Wednesday night as New York pounded Washington 7-3 and the Tribe took a 7-2 lashing from the Chicago White Sox — who became official also-rans 24 hours earlier.

At worst, New York can tie for the flag. They have won eight straight — their longest streak this season. Cleveland, two games ahead only a week ago, has lost five of six.

The 3½-game edge New York now holds is the biggest bulge any leader has had since July 15, when the Yanks led by four.

The Indians got just five safe blows off Jack Harshman last night. The Sox, meanwhile, shelled Bob Lemon, who lost his second straight.

Manager Al Lopez has started his aces — Lemon, Early Wynn and Mike Garcia — in each of the last six games and they've crumpled along with the hitters.

An error by rookie shortstop Bill Harrell, injected by Lopez in a try for more hits, opened the way to a five-run eighth inning for the White Sox as Lemon lost his 10th. He's won 18.

New York packaged the Nats in three innings, tagging Chuck Stobbs for six hits — four of them for extra bases — and a 4-0 lead. Billy Martin iced it with an inside-the-park homer with two on off rookie Ted Abernathy in the fifth.

Bob Turley won his 17th, but walked eight and Rip Coleman and Bob Grim mopped up after Washington scored three in the seventh.

In the other AL games, Baltimore left the cellar behind by beating Boston 8-7 in 13 innings, and Detroit clubbed Kansas City 10-1 as Ray Boone and Harvey Kuenn homered in an eight-run first.

The New York Giants, world champs a year ago, clinched third in the National League standings by peppering Pittsburgh for the second straight day in a double-header 7-2 and 7-3. Ray Monzant gave three hits in the nightcap and Don Liddle allowed only four in the first game.

Guesspert Picks His First Football Winners Of 1955

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK (AP)—Know just exactly how Archie Moore feels. This pigskin picker got slapped around something terrible last week when only 17 of his 25 forecasts came out correctly. This could be even worse.

Maryland over UCLA —Coach Jim Tatum says neither he nor his Maryland squad have done anything right this week. UCLA having difficulty finding a healthy right guard.

Georgia Tech over Florida—It will be a squeaker for Tech.

Notre Dame over Southern Methodist—The Irish have back only one line veteran from a year ago but quarterback Paul Hornung supposedly is a whiz.

Oklahoma over North Carolina—Coach Bud Wilkinson took his only returning starting backfielder and transformed him into a lineman—not because of a scarcity of line material but because he had so many good backs.

Michigan over Missouri—The Wolverines are solid all the way.

Illinois over California—Remember when these were two of the greatest? Neither has too much this year but the Illini look a little the stronger.

Pittsburgh over Syracuse—Dick Bowen is a very speedy Panther. He could make Pittsburgh the East's best.

Skipping over the others in a hurry:

FRIDAY NIGHT

Denver over Drake, Detroit over Toledo.

SATURDAY

East: Cornell over Lehigh, Yale over Connecticut, Baylor over Villanova, Virginia Tech over Pennsylvania, Penn State over Boston University, Navy over William & Mary, Holy Cross over Temple, Columbia over Brown, Colgate over Dartmouth, Army over Furman, Princeton over Rutgers.

South: Auburn over Chattanooga, Georgia over Vanderbilt, Duke over North Carolina State, Mississippi State over Tennessee, Clemson over Virginia, South Carolina over Wake Forest, West Virginia over Richmond, George Washington over VMI, Rice over Alabama, Mississippi over Kentucky.

Midwest: Northwestern over Miami of Ohio, Colorado over Arizona, Minnesota over Washington, Ohio State over Nebraska, Purdue over College of Pacific, Wisconsin over Marquette, Iowa over Kansas State, Indiana over Michigan State, Wichita over Utah State, Washington State over Kansas.

Yank Mound Staff Holds Slight Edge

NEW YORK (AP)— The New York Yankees will take fewer but sounder pitching arms than Brooklyn into the World Series next week and even with Don Newcombe going for them, the Dodgers will have a tough time matching Casey Stengel's staff.

At one time or another during the regular campaign, Carl Erskine, Johnny Podres, Billy Loes and Karl Spooner came down with arm miseries. Erskine hasn't looked good in his recent starts.

Brooklyn's hopes rest with Newcombe and Clem Labine, the bullpen ace. Newcombe has had a great year, winning 20 games against only five setbacks.

Stengel probably will go with lefthanders Whitey Ford and Tommy Byrne in the first two games in Yankee Stadium and righties Bob Turley and Don Larsen in the next two at Ebbets Field.

The Yankee mound crew has been clicking, but good, in the last couple of weeks. Ford has tacked on a couple of victories for a good-looking 18-7 record. Byrne, one of the year's big surprises, has won 16 valuable games and Turey has come through with 17 triumphs. Larsen, too, has improved since he was recaled from Denver.

Except for Bob Grim, the Yanks will be hurtin' for good relief pitchers. Jim Konstanty did an excellent job as a finisher earlier in the year, but he's ineligible for the series.

Lopez Clutches One Faint Hope

CHICAGO (AP) — The Cleveland Indians have practically been counted out of the American League race after last night's loss to the Chicago White Sox but Al Lopez, the Tribes' Manager, refuses to concede.

"We're not going to quit fighting," Lopez said after the Indians lost a 7-2 contest to the Sox. The loss left the Indians 3½ games behind the Yankees who won over Washington.

Lopez said:

"Anything can happen. The Yankees could lose four in a row, just like we did. As long as we've got a chance, we'll try."

Guesspert Picks His First Football Winners Of 1955

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK (AP)—Know just exactly how Archie Moore feels. This pigskin picker got slapped around something terrible last week when only 17 of his 25 forecasts came out correctly. This could be even worse.

Maryland over UCLA —Coach Jim Tatum says neither he nor his Maryland squad have done anything right this week. UCLA having difficulty finding a healthy right guard.

Georgia Tech over Florida—It will be a squeaker for Tech.

Notre Dame over Southern Methodist—The Irish have back only one line veteran from a year ago but quarterback Paul Hornung supposedly is a whiz.

Oklahoma over North Carolina—Coach Bud Wilkinson took his only returning starting backfielder and transformed him into a lineman—not because of a scarcity of line material but because he had so many good backs.

Michigan over Missouri—The Wolverines are solid all the way.

Illinois over California—Remember when these were two of the greatest? Neither has too much this year but the Illini look a little the stronger.

Pittsburgh over Syracuse—Dick Bowen is a very speedy Panther. He could make Pittsburgh the East's best.

Skipping over the others in a hurry:

FRIDAY NIGHT

Denver over Drake, Detroit over Toledo.

SATURDAY

East: Cornell over Lehigh, Yale over Connecticut, Baylor over Villanova, Virginia Tech over Pennsylvania, Penn State over Boston University, Navy over William & Mary, Holy Cross over Temple, Columbia over Brown, Colgate over Dartmouth, Army over Furman, Princeton over Rutgers.

South: Auburn over Chattanooga, Georgia over Vanderbilt, Duke over North Carolina State, Mississippi State over Tennessee, Clemson over Virginia, South Carolina over Wake Forest, West Virginia over Richmond, George Washington over VMI, Rice over Alabama, Mississippi over Kentucky.

Midwest: Northwestern over Miami of Ohio, Colorado over Arizona, Minnesota over Washington, Ohio State over Nebraska, Purdue over College of Pacific, Wisconsin over Marquette, Iowa over Kansas State, Indiana over Michigan State, Wichita over Utah State, Washington State over Kansas.

Far West: Utah over Idaho, Stanford over Oregon State, Wyoming over Montana, Southern Cal over Oregon.

Southwest: Texas A&M over Louisiana State, Texas Tech over Texas Christian, Hardin Simmons over Tulsa, Arkansas over Oklahoma A&M.

Marciano's Meat Grinder Floors Moore

9th Round Knockout Preserves Crown, But He Hints Retirement

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano's awesome, meat-grinder destruction of gallant, ancient Archie Moore in one of boxing's great battles may have been the invicible Brockton Blaster's last fight.

This was the one the indomitable Rock of Brockton wanted to win more than any other since he knocked the crown off Jersey Joe Walcott's brow three years ago in Philadelphia. And he won it in typical fashion with a relentless, bulldozing attack that smashed Archie's crumbling defenses with a knockout in 1:19 of the ninth round.

Now, with the light heavyweight no more worlds for boxing's Caesar to conquer and he mulled over retirement.

"There is a lot of pressure from my family for me to retire," said the 31-year-old victor in his dressing room. "My mother wants me to quit. So does my dad, and my wife. It has been a pretty bad ordeal for them. I don't know what I should do."

Then Rocky added: "Personally, at this point, I don't feel I should retire."

Rocky came off the floor Wednesday night like he did in the memorable first fight with Walcott, and ground down the crafty, cocky Moore with a relentless assault.

A smashing left hook to the jaw ended the 38 - year - old master craftsman's fierce resistance, leaving him a collapsed heap in his own corner.

Archie gave it all he had in the beginning when he floored Marciano for a four count in the second round with a right to the jaw.

"I blacked out just a second," said Rocky. "But I snapped out of it."

For a while it looked as if the crowd of 61,574, which contributed to a handsome $948,117 gate in the Yankee Stadium, was going to see an astonishing upset.

Rocky blinked his eyes. It was only the second time in his career that he had been floored. Walcott decked him in their first fight.

Archie went after the champ with another right to the jaw but Rocky's head was clear now and he moved in close. Archies's big moment was gone even though he had Rocky bleeding from the nose and bruised under the left eye before the hectic round was over.

In the third Rocky established his pattern of victory. He started maneuvering the crafty Moore to the ropes and ripped him in close with both hands.

The pressure was hot on Archie in the fourth and fifth rounds and in the sixth his aging legs betrayed him. Rocky's old "Suzy Q" overhand right shook him all over, buckling his knees. Another long right dropped him for a count of four. Rocky swarmed all over his stricken foe, smashing him down for eight.

For one minute of the seventh, Archie seemed to have dipped into his fountain of youth. But midway in the round, time and Rocky caught up with Archie again. By the end of the round, Archie's right eye was almost shut.

In the eighth, Rocky bulled Archie to the ropes and whaled away to head and body. A right to the jaw dropped the dead-tired Moore on the seat of his pants. The bell saved him as Referee Harry Kessler tolled seven.

Rocky was ready for the kill in the ninth. He forced his game foe to the ropes and let loose with everything he had.

Then it happened. A short, perfectly timed left hook thudded against Archie's jaw and he crumpled in his corner, a soggy left mitten over one rope.

It was all over. Archie went the way he wanted to if he had to go — counted out. He said:

The defeat ended Moore's winning streak of 21 and was the fifth time he had been kayoed in a career of 145 fights. It was Marciano's 49th victory in a perfect record that includes 43 knockouts.

Moore still had his 175-pound title and a $241,187 purse — the largest of his career. Rocky, too, earned his fattest check. He will receive $482,374.

The theater telecast earned an approximate $1,125,000, of which $350,000 went into the International Boxing Club coffers to be shared with the fighters. Radio added another $35,000.

Marciano, only a quarter pound heavier than Moore at 188¼, entered the ring as an almost prohibitive 4-1 favorite.

Minneapolis Eyes Little Series Win

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — The Minneapolis Millers, American Assn. champs, go after their 10th straight post season victory today in quest of their first Little World Series title.

The Millers made it nine straight in playoff competition by pasting the International League's Governor's Cup holder, the Rochester Red Wings, 8-3, last night.

50,000 Expected To See Today's Little Brown Jug

DELAWARE (AP) — A crowd of 50,000 is expected to watch 17 of the country's sharpest three-year-old pacers run for $66,608.83 in purse money at today's harness race classic, the Little Brown Jug.

The mile race over the Delaware County Fairgrounds half-mile track will be run in two divisions—nine horses in the first and eight in the second.

The first five in each division will come back for a third heat. If neither of the two previous winners place first, winners of all three heats will race to decide the 10th annual "Jug" winner.

The outcome of the deciding mile has 10 per cent of the purse riding with it. However, if a pacer wins in straight heats, his owner can pick up $24,645.24. The remainder will be spread among the first five horses in each of the three heats.

Leading contenders for "Jug" honors are Quick Chief, owned by Farmstead Acres, Brookville, N. Y., and Meadow Ace, owned by Newport stock farm stable, South Plainfield, N. J. Both are co-favorites at 8-5.

Quick Chief, to be driven by Billy Haughton, third - ranking Grand Circuit reinsman of 1954, will go in the first division. Meadow Ace, to be handled by Del Cameron, starts in the second. Cameron, of Pinehurst, N. C., has won the "Jug" twice before.

A total sale of $128,750 was marked up last night as the Ohio Breeders Sale Co. concluded its two-day sale of harness horse yearlings here. Eighty - eight horses went under the auctioneer's gavel. Top prices colt was Baham Pick, consigned by Pickwick Farm, Bucyrus, which sold for $10,000.

Yesterday, a three-year-old trotter, Galphone, cracked three records in the run for the $6,000 Old Oaken Bucket purse at the Delaware County Fair. Galophone won the first heat in 2:02.4, the second in 2:01.4. That twice broke the all-time record and the combined record was lowered.

The $9,991 Ohio Futurity for two-year-old trotters was won by Neaport Del after a two-horse raceoff with Magnus Hanover.

80 Mph. Race Is Blamed For Gridders' Deaths

ALLIANCE (AP) — An 80-mile-an-hour auto race was blamed for an accident which took the lives of three Atwater High School football players yesterday.

Sheriff's deputies said two carloads of football players were racing on Ohio 225 when one car skidded, struck a telephone pole and overturned several times.

Killed were Frank Kitowski Jr., 19; Leonard LeRoy Morris, 16, and Donald Herovatick, 16. Two other boys were thrown out of the car and were treated for cuts.

Deputies said the car driven by Morris was racing with one driven by Richard Twark, 16, another Atwater football player. Twark was cited to juvenile authorities.

Marciano's Meat Grinder Floors Moore

9th Round Knockout Preserves Crown, But He Hints Retirement

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano's awesome, meat-grinder destruction of gallant, ancient Archie Moore in one of boxing's great battles may have been the invicible Brockton Blaster's last fight.

This was the one the indomitable Rock of Brockton wanted to win more than any other since he knocked the crown off Jersey Joe Walcott's brow three years ago in Philadelphia. And he won it in typical fashion with a relentless, bulldozing attack that smashed Archie's crumbling defenses with a knockout in 1:19 of the ninth round.

Now, with the light heavyweight no more worlds for boxing's Caesar to conquer and he mulled over retirement.

"There is a lot of pressure from my family for me to retire," said the 31-year-old victor in his dressing room. "My mother wants me to quit. So does my dad, and my wife. It has been a pretty bad ordeal for them. I don't know what I should do."

Then Rocky added: "Personally, at this point, I don't feel I should retire."

Rocky came off the floor Wednesday night like he did in the memorable first fight with Walcott, and ground down the crafty, cocky Moore with a relentless assault.

A smashing left hook to the jaw ended the 38 - year - old master craftsman's fierce resistance, leaving him a collapsed heap in his own corner.

1956 Autos To Be Displayed Here Will Emphasize 'Safety'

New Features Include Straps For The Rider

Optional Equipment Being Brought Out By Manufacturers

Pickaway Countians, who are keenly interested in traffic safety, will keep a watchful eye on the 1956 cars which are beginning to be shown here.

Automobile manufacturers, for the first time, have gone all-out to include safety devices for riders inside the cars. Although manufacturers for the past several years have made some individual contributions, this will be the first time that the auto industry as a whole has publicly announced it will concentrate on safety features.

For example, seat straps are now being offered. These are similar to those found in airplanes and can be purchased as optional equipment. Engineers have found that many injuries are caused when riders are thrown around in or out of cars.

Also, there will be a special "collapsible" steering wheel that will "give way" when a heavy object is pressed against it. This means the wheel in the hands of the driver, not the entire steering column. Studies have shown that serious injuries are caused when a driver is crushed against the steering wheel, usually causing severe internal injuries.

* * *

NEXT, a different principle is being observed for door latches. Researchers have found that many serous injuries could have been prevented if the person inside had not been thrown out of the vehicle.

Even the sun visor is under study. Research by an Eastern university proved that in a collision a person tended to "rise" towards the sun visor before being "thrown" through the windshield.

One auto manufacturer, as long ago as 1950, came out with a special type windshield that would "pop" out in a collision, thus preventing a rider from being hurled through the glass. Also, this manufacturer utilized "padded" dashboards, so that if a person was thrown against it he or she would not suffer serious injury.

Several other innovations are to be introduced this year and next. And this type of consideration for riders is welcomed because it has been ignored previously.

In recent years, auto makers have battled to "soup" up cars with more horsepower. They compensated for this with better tires, brakes and steering devices.

* * *

HOWEVER, traffic studies showed that these "safety improvements" did little to cut down on accidents brought on by increased speed. The "safety" emphasis appeared to be in the wrong direction.

Most auto manufacturers, although they publicly will not admit it, have conceded that the country's roads are totally inadequate to handle today's high powered cars—except in few cases. Even a super highway is not immune to accidents, studies indicate.

Extensive studies have been quietly conducted by several institutions with the cooperation of the auto industry. The fruits of these studies have finally blossomed.

Some of the safety improvements being introduced may not be accepted so readily at first, auto makers agree. For example, the seat stap has been marketed for at least two years but never won wide acceptance because people felt it caused too much of an "inconvenience."

However, the auto makers are to be commended for at least making an effort. It will be interesting to see how these innovations are accepted not only in Pickaway County but also in surrounding areas, as the accident toll here has risen so sharply.

More Ohio Kids To Get Vaccine

COLUMBUS (AP) — Salk vaccine for inoculating about 340,000 Ohio school children who did not get second shots before school ended last spring will be available within 10 days.

Dr. Ralph E. Dwork, state health director, made that known to more than 100 county and city health commissioners now holding their regular annual conference with the health department.

About 380,000 first and second graders got first shots before the federal government cut off the supply. About 40,000 of these received second shots.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Good buys in beef and chickens and a tendency toward lower prices for other meats is the nees from the nation's food stores for weekend shoppers.

In the beef line, you'll find worthwhile buys in chuck roast, steaks, and, here and there, prime ribs.

Smoked hams will be featured rather widely. Other pork items mentioned by a number of stores include loins of pork, smoked picnics, fresh hams, and pork butts. Where pork chop prices are changed from a week ago, lower prices predominate.

Some meat specialists say you may see lower prices on most meats next week because pork, beef and lamb all came down at wholesale this week.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture offers these tips on beef:

"Lower grades are truly budget savers. Long, slow cooking and a flair with seasonings will make the finest stew, meat loaf of pot roast from the lower graded meat. Beef marked U. S. good or U. S. commercial will not be as tender and juicy as a comparable cut graded U. S. choice of prime, but it is every bit as nutritious. The top grades are the best buy when you want steaks and oven roasts—the cuts that require shorter cooking time."

One big chain is hiking egg prices from two to seven cents a dozen on top grade A whites.

Potatoes, small-size onions and eggplant are rated as the outstanding buys in vegetables.

Most Revived Man Dies At Age 97

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—No more will the Lansing fire department dispatcher sing out: "It's Harry again!"

The squad revived Cove 172 times over the years and claimed that he was the world's "most revived man."

He died Wednesday.

The squad was not called the last time.

Mental Exam Set For Bank Clerk

COLUMBUS (AP)—Federal Judge Mell G. Underwood has ordered a mental examination for Sally Schaaf, 23-year-old former bookkeeper at the First National Bank of Chillicothe, who admitted embezzling $3,900 in bank funds.

Miss Scaaf's attorney asked that she be placed on probation and explained that she has been receiving psychiatric treatment.

The former bookkeeper, who also is a college graduate, told the judge, "I'm sorry about all this. I don't know why I started taking money out of my father's account."

Most of the money was removed from the account of her father, a Chillicothe dentist, whom Miss Schaaf said she disliked.

FBI Joins Hunt For Cop-Killer

CINCINNATI (AP)—Issuance of a federal fugitive warrant today has brought the Federal Bureau of Investigation into the search for one of three men charged with murder in the slaying late Monday night of Cincinnati police detective Walter Hart, 49.

Two of the three men were captured a short time after Hart was shot to death in a near downtown cafe. The third man has been listed by police as Lemuel Trotter, 28.

One suspect was taken into custody near West Carrolton last night but witnesses to the shooting said he was not Trotter and fingerprints bore that out.

Most men who smoke cigarets at all smoke less than a pack a day.

CINCINNATI (AP)—Issuance of a federal fugitive warrant today has brought the Federal Bureau of Investigation into the search for one of three men charged with murder in the slaying late Monday night of Cincinnati police detective Walter Hart, 49.

Two of the three men were captured a short time after Hart was shot to death in a near downtown cafe. The third man has been listed by police as Lemuel Trotter, 28.

One suspect was taken into custody near West Carrolton last night but witnesses to the shooting said he was not Trotter and fingerprints bore that out.

Most men who smoke cigarets at all smoke less than a pack a day.

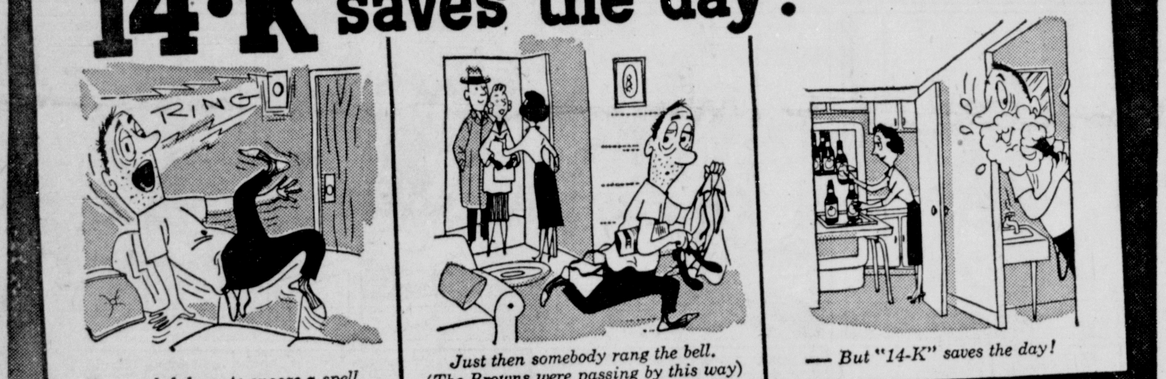
14-K saves the day!

*Idea suggested by Jay C. Thompson Benkenstein Drive Wyoming, Ohio



Tom settled down to snooze a spell.

Just then somebody rang the bell. (The Browns were passing by this way)

— But "14-K" saves the day!

"14-K" saves the day? Boy, it sure does! For that's the sign of beer at its golden best. And the name comes from the remarkable finishing process we named Process 14-K. For while Hudepohl is brewed much the same as all fine beers, it's Process 14-K that puts the final brilliant touch on its famous flavor . . . turns an unusually fine beer into beer at its golden best!

Look for this seal. It's your guarantee of beer at its golden best . . . of purity, brilliance and genuine satisfaction in every golden drop.
